LOS ANGELES, Harbor, Nov. 24.—Out on the high seas today the yacht Velero III was heading for lonely, waterless Marchena Island in the Galapagos group to give the final answer to the mystery of the death of two men whose bodies were discovered on a stretch of barren beach.

Died Of Thrist

Capt. Ostrom based his belief of the identity of the pair on information radioed by Capt. Roderiques, and the finding of a bundle of baby clothes near the bodies. Estampa was the father of a small child.

Estampa, Ostrom believes, had gone to Charles Island for supplies and contended to take Lorenz to his home, or to some other island in the group. Enroute it is believed a storm overtook the little sloop and it was wrecked on the reefs of Marchena Island after being driven far from its course.

Lorenz and Estampa then, in the opinion of Ostrom made their way ashore in the skiff found over one of the bodies, and perished from lack of water.

The Elliott Roosevelts, Mrs. Enzo Piermonte the former Madeline Force Astor Dick; Whitney Bourne, Jane Wyatt, Cobina Wright and her former husband, William Mayewright; Stephen (Laddy) Sanford, Francis Hitchcock, Rosamond Pinchot, the Raimund von Hoffmanstahls and Mrs. Mildred Tilton Holmsen.

The forthcoming register contains the names of all members of the presidential family except those of Elliott and his second wife.

Insull Case To Be Given Into Hands Of Jury

Final Arguments And Charge By Judge Wilkerson Will Be Made Today

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—After eight long weeks of ponderous trial procedure the mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull, 75-year-old former utilities czar, and 16 co-defendants will be given to the jury today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Only the last of the closing arguments and Judge Wilkerson's instructions to the jury remained for the morning session today.

With these completed the jury, which has been locked up since the trial began, will then retire to deliberate as to whether Samuel Insull, his son, Samuel, Jr., and 15 former business associates are guilty or not guilty of fraudulently selling $100,000,000 of Corporation Securities company stock, as the government has charged.

That is the only verdict the jury can bring in. The jurors may select or leave out any of the 25 counts in the indictment. They may find all the defendants guilty or not guilty, or they may select which of the accused will received the respective verdicts.

But they cannot fix the punishment. That remains for the court to decide.

Japan Making New Effort To Becloud Issue

(International News Service)

The real issue at stake was considered to be the right of all nations to trade freely with China and Japan's threat to interfere with that right by establishing virtual hegemony over that land.

Officials were convinced the motive behind Japan's naval aspira-

E. And A. Division Veterans Gather Here In Annual Reunion

Christmas comes but once a year according to the old saw, but the same can be said about the annual banquet of the E. & A. Division of the Pennsylvania System Veterans Association banquet and reunion. It comes but once a year also and today is the day. Bigger in some ways than Christmas for this is the day when the veterans of a great railway system gather to live over old times, brush back the cobwebs of the years and go back to the days when High Speed Riley yas wheeling passenger into Pittsburgh.

It isn't just a banquet they held at noon today in the Castleton Hotel. It is an event, more it is an institution, an institution that has thirteen sucessful meetings back of it and grows in interest and sentiment each year. This is the fourteenth annual affair of its kind and a number of the vets present have a perfect record of attendance.

Note Of Sadness

There is a note of sadness running through the day however. Since the veterans gathered last year for their annual banquet, fifteen of their number have been reported into the Great Terminal. For them the annual reunion on the E. & A. Division is over and they are now enjoying that eternal reunion.

For the veterans the day really started when the members from all over Erie and Ashtabula Division began checking in. From Erie, from Ashtabula, from Homewood and Youngstown and Stoneboro they poured in ready for the big day.

OHIO NEGRO IS PUT TO DEATH

Isaac Mosley, Clothed In White Baptismal Robe Goes To His Death In Chair

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 24—Cloaked in a flowing white baptismal robe so that he could "die like Jesus," Isaac Mosley, Cincinnati negro, today had paid with his life in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary the penalty the law demanded for a murder.

Tall and lanky, Mosley provided one of the most unusual scenes in the history of the death house when he walked into the execution chamber clothed in the white robe with a black cord around his waist.

Mosley, 25 years old, nearly broke down while he was being strapped into the chair. A murmur escaped from his lips but he regained composure when one of the preachers who had prayed with him during his last hours consoled with "That's all right, son."

The robe that Mosley wore to his death was the baptismal garment of his faith. He was pronounced dead six minutes after he entered the death chamber. Prior to his death he had sung psalms throughout the afternoon.

Find Bodies Of Girls In Woods Near Carlisle

Victims Are Five, Ten And 14 Years Of Age Is Estimate

ALL WERE BEATEN BY FIEND KILLER

Three Bodies Laid Side By Side And Covered With Blanket

(International News Service)

CARLISLE, Pa., No. 24—Victims of a fiendish killer, three pretty little girls, believed to be sisters, were found beaten to death in the woods near Huntsdale today.

Their flowing golden hair was matted in blood that had flowed from bruises inflicted by their slayer as he struck them on the head with a heavy instrument.

His last gesture of inscrutable compassion was to arrange the little victims in a row, turn their faces all in the same direction, and cover them neatly with a blanket.

No Identification

The girls were attired in dresses but had no hats. Authorities were unable to find a single mark of identification on their clothing or on the blankets.

The girls bore strong resemblances to each other, they appeared to be about five, ten and 14 years of age.

The gruesome discovery was made by John E. Clark, a caretaker on the James M. Cameron estate, as he and a helper drove into the woods with a truck today for a load of wood.

A green blanket, with a bright purple border, attracted their attention but they at first thought it shielded an illegal deer kill.

Clark was horrified as he lifted the covering and found the three

WILL ROGERS says:

(Special To The News)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 24.—It's been hard for nations to start another war, because they didn't have any particular reason, or alignment. But now it looks like the next war will be between the nations that were invited to the big English wedding and those that were not.

The funny part about it is, the the whole mess of 'em are all kinfolks, and nobody can fall out and get as sore at each other as kinfolks.

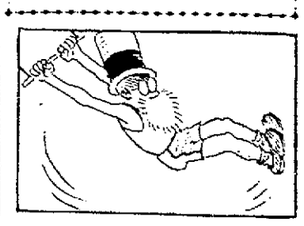

That Queen Marie strain seems to have run a more direct line and stayed in the ermine, than any strain in Europe.

Well, the whole thing makes good reading and that's about all society things are for.

His actions are graceful the song writer tells me, he probably wears a bright waxy mustache and has plenty verve as the French lads would put it, and plenty of something that's set down as dash. Oh that daring young man and his sky like demeanor, must be some guy a, he floats through the blue, and some day I hope to catch up with the rascal, the weather is cooler and just forty-two.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—There was a fair-to-middlin' sensation in New York society circles today when it was revealed that a number of prominent names had been omitted from this year's social register.

Among names left out of the blue book of blue bloods are:

The Elliott Roosevelts, Mrs. Enzo Fiermonte the former Madeline Force Astor Dick; Whitney Bourne, Jane Wyatt, Cobina Wright and her former husband, William Maywright; Stephen (Laddy) Sanford, Francis Hitchcock, Rosamond Pinchot, the Raimund von Hoffmanstahls and Mrs. Mildred Tilton Holmsen.

Last year the register, the editors of whom are unknown, carried the names of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt and the announcement of their marriage at Burlington, Iowa, in July, 1933, soon after the president's son had been divorced by the former Elizabeth Donner in Reno. The forthcoming register contains the names of all members of the presidential family except those of Elliott and his second wife.

Final Arguments And Charge By Judge Wilkerson Will Be Made Today

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—After eight long weeks of ponderous trial procedure the mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull, 75-year-old former utilities czar, and 16 co-defendants will be given to the jury today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Only the last of the closing arguments and Judge Wilkerson's instructions to the jury remained for the morning session today.

With these completed the jury, which has been locked up since the trial began, will then retire to deliberate as to whether Samuel Insull, his son, Samuel, Jr., and 15 former business associates are guilty or not guilty of fraudulently selling $100,000,000 of Corporation Securities company stock, as the government has charged.

That is the only verdict the jury can bring in. The jurors may select or leave out any of the 25 counts in the indictment. They may find all the defendants guilty or not guilty, or they may select which of the accused will received the respective verdicts.

But they cannot fix the punishment. That remains for the court to decide.

E. And A. Division Veterans Gather Here In Annual Reunion

Christmas comes but once a year according to the old saw, but the same can be said about the annual banquet of the E. & A. Division of the Pennsylvania System Veterans Association banquet and reunion. It comes but once a year also and today is the day. Bigger in some ways than Christmas for this is the day when the veterans of a great railway system gather to live over old times, brush back the cobwebs of the years and go back to the days when High Speed Riley yas wheeling passenger into Pittsburgh.

It isn't just a banquet they held at noon today in the Castleton Hotel. It is an event, more it is an institution, an institution that has thirteen sucessful meetings back of it and grows in interest and sentiment each year. This is the fourteenth annual affair of its kind and a number of the vets present have a perfect record of attendance.

Note Of Sadness

There is a note of sadness running through the day however. Since the veterans gathered last year for their annual banquet, fifteen of their number have been reported into the Great Terminal. For them the annual reunion on the E. & A. Division is over and they are now enjoying that eternal reunion.

For the veterans the day really started when the members from all over Erie and Ashtabula Division began checking in. From Erie, from Ashtabula, from Homewood and Youngstown and Stoneboro they poured in ready for the big day.

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 24—Cloaked in a flowing white baptismal robe so that he could "die like Jesus," Isaac Mosley, Cincinnati negro, today had paid with his life in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary the penalty the law demanded for a murder.

CARLISLE, Pa., No. 24—Victims of a fiendish killer, three pretty little girls, believed to be sisters, were found beaten to death in the woods near Huntsdale today.

Their flowing golden hair was matted in blood that had flowed from bruises inflicted by their slayer as he struck them on the head with a heavy instrument.

His last gesture of inscrutable compassion was to arrange the little victims in a row, turn their faces all in the same direction, and cover them neatly with a blanket.

The girls bore strong resemblances to each other, they appeared to be about five, ten and 14 years of age.

The gruesome discovery was made by John E. Clark, a caretaker on the James M. Cameron estate, as he and a helper drove into the woods with a truck today for a load of wood.

Mellon Scholarship Offer Turned Down

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24.—The "House of Mellon" was rocked today by Dr. James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University, who rejected a $1,500 scholarship offered by Matthew T. Mellon to finance a year's study by a student in Germany.

Mellon, son of W. L. Mellon, and a student in the Harvard graduate school of arts and sciences, said Dr. Conant was unfair and gave him "a slap in the face" by rejecting the scholarship offer.

In a telephone conversation from Cambridge, Mass., young Mellon, a grand-nephew of former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, said:

"I am not a Nazi nor a Nazi agent—I'm an American citizen and a Republican.

"There is no question of violation where a club sells beer on Sunday," said Mr. Ailey. "The superior court has just handed down an opinion in the case of state licensed clubs which denies them the right to sell

Ship Captain Almost Certain Of Identification Of Galapagos Island Victims

WASHED ASHORE BY SEVERE GALE

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Harbor, Nov. 24.—Out on the high seas today the yacht Velero III was heading for lonely, waterless Marchena Island in the Galapagos group to give the final answer to the mystery of the death of two men whose bodies were discovered on a stretch of barren beach.

As the Velero III sailed Capt. Fred Ostrom of the Tuna ship, Northwestern, advanced the theory the bodies discovered by Capt. Manuel Roderigues of the San Diego fishing boat, Santa Amarm were those of Arthur Estampa and Alfred Rudolph Lorenze. Ostrom has often visited the islands.

Died Of Thrist

Capt. Ostrom based his belief of the identity of the pair on information radioed by Capt. Roderiques, and the finding of a bundle of baby clothes near the bodies. Estampa was the father of a small child.

Estampa, Ostrom believes, had gone to Charles Island for supplies and contended to take Lorenz to his home, or to some other island in the group. Enroute it is believed a storm overtook the little sloop and it was wrecked on the reefs of Marchena Island after being driven far from its course.

Lorenz and Estampa then, in the opinion of Ostrom made their way ashore in the skiff found over one of the bodies, and perished from lack of water.

NEW CLASH DEVELOPS IN NEW DEAL

Ickes And Moffett Differ On Housing

President May Have To Take Hand To Settle Controversy

BUILDING METHODS CAUSE OF DISPUTE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Roosevelt may have to act as arbiter in the newest clash of new deal personalities, that between Secretary of Interior Ickes and Federal Housing Administrator Moffett.

Secretary Ickes himself, before denying officially that he had intended in any way to challenge Moffett's program, said he would leave to the president any decision on policy involved.

Housing Project.

Ickes is committed to a nation-wide development of government-built and government-owned low-cost housing, to rent for $5 to $7 per room per month. Condemnation proceedings have been launched in a number of cities, and are being prepared in others, to obtain the land. Ickes has even intimated he may recommend the government assert its right of eminent domain to take over necessary properties.

With these these proceedings already under way, and construction started in some cases, James Moffett, dynamic organizer of the FHA, which aims at bringing in private financing for privately-owned homes, has suddenly hit the entire program.

E. AND A. DIVISION IN ANNUAL REUNION

Long before noon they were gathered in the lobby of the Castleton renewing acquainatnces, meeting men they hadn't seen since last year. Some of them are stooped just a little more than they were a year ago, the legs and arms that once were so lithe and nimble in getting trains through storm and sleet and sun do not respond so quickly as they once did.

Ten Per Cent Overload

At 12:30 the veterans sat down to a turkey dinner that had most of them close to the ten per cent overload clause before they got through. There was plenty of turkey and potatoes, dressing and green peas, rolls and salad and pumpkin pie. And the way they laid into that meal was reminiscent of the days when they were out over sixteen hours with no bucket.

During the dinner the Senior High School orchestra played, and prior to the beginning of the meal Richard E. Johns directed the crowd in singing "America."

T. L. Hofmeister was in charge of the program as Master of Ceremonies and he introduced the speaker of the day, Hon. Robert L. Wallace. Mr. Wallace's topic was "Our Honorable Calling" and in it he pointed out the importance and dignity of the railroaders job. He reminded them that without their skill and energy mails would be delayed, milk would not be delivered to the cities, human beings would not be able to get to and from the various cities. "The railroad is the link that bind this nation together' said Mr. Wallace, "and the men who operate the railroads are the spark that vitalizes the great link. Whether you have been associated in the operating end or the maintenance end makes little difference, all of you had a part in making possible the benefits given us by the railroads and in making the Pennsylvania system the giant among its fellows that it is."

Dancers Entertain

Nell Brady and her group of charming young misses presented a program of interpretative dancing that was enjoyed by the veterans. Acrobatic, esthetic and tap dances were on the program and all of them given to the keen delight of the men present.

The one saddening note of each reunion followed. Memorial Service. As each dead veteran's name was called there was a response in the hearts of those who knew them and perhaps a little of wonderment as to who would be next.

The program was not a long one nor was it intended to be. The idea was to have just enough speaking and entertainment to satisfy and devote the balance of the afternoon to reunion. This was done and the combination of it all gave the veterans a day they will remember until next year.

Officers were to be elected later in the afternoon.

Report Borders Closed.

Vienna, Nov. 24.—The correspondents of Vienna newspapers today reported they had been reliably informed that Jugoslavian authorities had ordered their borders closed to local traffic along the Hungarian and Austrian borders.

It was believed the measure was put into effect at the request of military authorities as a result of the tensity of the central European situation. Main railway trains continued running.

Counter-measures, it was said, can be expected to be taken by Austria and Hungary.

All of which appears to mean that the boys will be unable to get their beer on Sunday in the clubs. State Investigator Michael Sarko is preparing to check the state licensed clubs and any violation will be punished by abrogation of the license. robbers to keep a stolen car used in the robbery for a few joy rides led to the roundup.

Stolen Car Clue

The robbers' organization was perfect and should have been foolproof, police said. They had two men whose activities were confined to stealing cars to be used in robberies. The automobiles were to be abandoned immediately after, but in the Hawley job one of the robbers kept a stolen automobile a few extra days. He was arrested and the roundup of the others followed, including the arrest of four suspects in Miami, Fla.

The men named by the police as the Hawley bank robbers among those now under arrest were Rocco, Herbert Miller, 25, and Herbert Doberman, 22. The girl arrested had several aliases, among them Rita Mastroccia, and was said to be Miller's wife.

The two other men arrested in New York were named by the police as Anthony Ingenito, 34, and Vincent Russo, 34, both of Brooklyn.

The men arrested in Miami in connection with the Hawley robbery were named by police as George W. Williams, 28; Arthur Walsh, 30; James McNey, 25, and Joseph Whalen, 28. Police would divulge no information about them.

little victims. He ran three miles to the nearest telephone to call police while his helper remained at the scene.

Beaten About Head

The two elder girls had been beaten on the head. A thin drool of blood had trickled from the tiny mouth of the youngest child.

Townspeople were shocked and horrified by the tragedy. State, city and county police began an immediate investigation through the countryside in an effort to learn the identity of the child victims.

Before abandoning his victims the slayer had spread a blanket over the forest covering of dead leaves and underbrush. Upon it he placed the bodies and then covered them again with another blanket.

Coroner E. S. Haegele, of Cumberland county, after an investigation, said he was of the opinion that the bodies had been placed in the woods since last night. The blanket coverings were damp but not wet enough to indicate the victims had lain in the forest through yesterday's heavy rain, he said.

The children lay on their sides. The youngest had been placed in the middle between her two older sisters.

robbers to keep a stolen car used in the robbery for a few joy rides led to the roundup.

Stolen Car Clue

The robbers' organization was perfect and should have been foolproof, police said. They had two men whose activities were confined to stealing cars to be used in robberies. The automobiles were to be abandoned immediately after, but in the Hawley job one of the robbers kept a stolen automobile a few extra days. He was arrested and the roundup of the others followed, including the arrest of four suspects in Miami, Fla.

The men named by the police as the Hawley bank robbers among those now under arrest were Rocco, Herbert Miller, 25, and Herbert Doberman, 22. The girl arrested had several aliases, among them Rita Mastroccia, and was said to be Miller's wife.

The two other men arrested in New York were named by the police as Anthony Ingenito, 34, and Vincent Russo, 34, both of Brooklyn.

The men arrested in Miami in connection with the Hawley robbery were named by police as George W. Williams, 28; Arthur Walsh, 30; James McNey, 25, and Joseph Whalen, 28. Police would divulge no information about them.

little victims. He ran three miles to the nearest telephone to call police while his helper remained at the scene.

Beaten About Head

The two elder girls had been beaten on the head. A thin drool of blood had trickled from the tiny mouth of the youngest child.

Townspeople were shocked and horrified by the tragedy. State, city and county police began an immediate investigation through the countryside in an effort to learn the identity of the child victims.

Before abandoning his victims the slayer had spread a blanket over the forest covering of dead leaves and underbrush. Upon it he placed the bodies and then covered them again with another blanket.

Coroner E. S. Haegele, of Cumberland county, after an investigation, said he was of the opinion that the bodies had been placed in the woods since last night. The blanket coverings were damp but not wet enough to indicate the victims had lain in the forest through yesterday's heavy rain, he said.

The children lay on their sides. The youngest had been placed in the middle between her two older sisters.

NEW CLASH DEVELOPS IN NEW DEAL

Ickes And Moffett Differ On Housing

President May Have To Take Hand To Settle Controversy

BUILDING METHODS CAUSE OF DISPUTE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Roosevelt may have to act as arbiter in the newest clash of new deal personalities, that between Secretary of Interior Ickes and Federal Housing Administrator Moffett.

Secretary Ickes himself, before denying officially that he had intended in any way to challenge Moffett's program, said he would leave to the president any decision on policy involved.

Housing Project.

Ickes is committed to a nation-wide development of government-built and government-owned low-cost housing, to rent for $5 to $7 per room per month. Condemnation proceedings have been launched in a number of cities, and are being prepared in others, to obtain the land. Ickes has even intimated he may recommend the government assert its right of eminent domain to take over necessary properties.

With these these proceedings already under way, and construction started in some cases, James Moffett, dynamic organizer of the FHA, which aims at bringing in private financing for privately-owned homes, has suddenly hit the entire program.

E. AND A. DIVISION IN ANNUAL REUNION

Long before noon they were gathered in the lobby of the Castleton renewing acquainatnces, meeting men they hadn't seen since last year. Some of them are stooped just a little more than they were a year ago, the legs and arms that once were so lithe and nimble in getting trains through storm and sleet and sun do not respond so quickly as they once did.

Ten Per Cent Overload

At 12:30 the veterans sat down to a turkey dinner that had most of them close to the ten per cent overload clause before they got through. There was plenty of turkey and potatoes, dressing and green peas, rolls and salad and pumpkin pie. And the way they laid into that meal was reminiscent of the days when they were out over sixteen hours with no bucket.

During the dinner the Senior High School orchestra played, and prior to the beginning of the meal Richard E. Johns directed the crowd in singing "America."

T. L. Hofmeister was in charge of the program as Master of Ceremonies and he introduced the speaker of the day, Hon. Robert L. Wallace. Mr. Wallace's topic was "Our Honorable Calling" and in it he pointed out the importance and dignity of the railroaders job. He reminded them that without their skill and energy mails would be delayed, milk would not be delivered to the cities, human beings would not be able to get to and from the various cities. "The railroad is the link that bind this nation together' said Mr. Wallace, "and the men who operate the railroads are the spark that vitalizes the great link. Whether you have been associated in the operating end or the maintenance end makes little difference, all of you had a part in making possible the benefits given us by the railroads and in making the Pennsylvania system the giant among its fellows that it is."

Dancers Entertain

Nell Brady and her group of charming young misses presented a program of interpretative dancing that was enjoyed by the veterans. Acrobatic, esthetic and tap dances were on the program and all of them given to the keen delight of the men present.

The one saddening note of each reunion followed. Memorial Service. As each dead veteran's name was called there was a response in the hearts of those who knew them and perhaps a little of wonderment as to who would be next.

The program was not a long one nor was it intended to be. The idea was to have just enough speaking and entertainment to satisfy and devote the balance of the afternoon to reunion. This was done and the combination of it all gave the veterans a day they will remember until next year.

Officers were to be elected later in the afternoon.

Officers In Charge

The officers for 1934, with the committe in charge of the day follow:

ARREST SEVEN AS BANDIT SUSPECTS

robbers to keep a stolen car used in the robbery for a few joy rides led to the roundup.

Stolen Car Clue

The robbers' organization was perfect and should have been foolproof, police said. They had two men whose activities were confined to stealing cars to be used in robberies. The automobiles were to be abandoned immediately after, but in the Hawley job one of the robbers kept a stolen automobile a few extra days. He was arrested and the roundup of the others followed, including the arrest of four suspects in Miami, Fla.

The men named by the police as the Hawley bank robbers among those now under arrest were Rocco, Herbert Miller, 25, and Herbert Doberman, 22. The girl arrested had several aliases, among them Rita Mastroccia, and was said to be Miller's wife.

The two other men arrested in New York were named by the police as Anthony Ingenito, 34, and Vincent Russo, 34, both of Brooklyn.

The men arrested in Miami in connection with the Hawley robbery were named by police as George W. Williams, 28; Arthur Walsh, 30; James McNey, 25, and Joseph Whalen, 28. Police would divulge no information about them.

little victims. He ran three miles to the nearest telephone to call police while his helper remained at the scene.

Beaten About Head

The two elder girls had been beaten on the head. A thin drool of blood had trickled from the tiny mouth of the youngest child.

Townspeople were shocked and horrified by the tragedy. State, city and county police began an immediate investigation through the countryside in an effort to learn the identity of the child victims.

Before abandoning his victims the slayer had spread a blanket over the forest covering of dead leaves and underbrush. Upon it he placed the bodies and then covered them again with another blanket.

Coroner E. S. Haegele, of Cumberland county, after an investigation, said he was of the opinion that the bodies had been placed in the woods since last night. The blanket coverings were damp but not wet enough to indicate the victims had lain in the forest through yesterday's heavy rain, he said.

The children lay on their sides. The youngest had been placed in the middle between her two older sisters.

TEA AND RECEPTION FOR FRENCH VISITOR

The home of Mrs. George Ferver, East Lincoln avenue, was the mecca of internationally minded women of the city Friday afternoon, when the Lawrence County Council for the Cause and Cure of War and the International department of the Women's Clubs, entertained at a tea and reception honoring Madame Carof of Paris, France, who is in the United States, studying the status of the American Woman, and making good-will talks in various places.

In the receiving line with Mme. Carof were Mrs. W. L. Cosel, Mrs. R. S. Tannehill, Mrs. A. H. Davis, Miss Alice Sterling, Mrs. A. B. Fankhouser, Miss Marguerite White, Mrs. Harriet Nowling, Mrs. J. B. McClaren and Mrs. Herbert Kirk, representing various clubs and organizations of the city. During the arrival of the near 100 women Miss Geraldine Ferver entertained with piano numbers.

After the group had found chairs in the spacious living rooms of the Ferver home, Mrs. Cosel, for the Lawrence County Council of Cause and Cure of War, welcomed Mme. Carof and the guests; Mrs. R. S. Tannehill then brought greetings from the International Relations department of the Woman's Club.

Mme. Carof, in her informal talk to the women, said it will be through the power of women of the world that war will be abolished and she launched a most graphic picture of the countries of southern Europe. She said the best way for the countries to work for peace is through a better understanding of the individuals of the various countries.

She said the difficulties in Europe now are caused by the geographic divisions of the countries, following the war, telling of how a farm, a village, or a city was cut in half, part of it belonging in German territory and part in Polish territory. These conditions, with the difficulty of getting passports to cross the frontiers, lead the residents into the direst of straits. She said that the United States' plans of education, housing, adult education and other means by which the lives of Americans are made comfortable would be impossible in European countries.

She told of the poverty of the natives of the countries, which were cut up after the world war to make new nations and said these small countries could do no constructive work, all they can do is to keep out of dangers. It was the thought of the nations to right the wrongs caused by the war, but instead they made it worse by carving in Europe.

She gave a realistic picture to the women of conditions among the villagers and working class of people.

She further stated that the nations of Europe are making an effort to evade war as another war would simply annihilate the countries.

She urged a stronger peace movement in a Federation of European states and furtherance of the League of Nations, establishing something stronger than was the outcome of treaties made while the nations were still war-minded.

At close of the talk, Mme. Carof answered many questions of the women in regard to international affairs.

Tea was served from a prettily appointed table in the dining room, with Mrs. A. B. Fankhouser, Mrs. A. H. Davis, Mrs. J. B. McClaren and Mrs. Hattie Nowling pouring.

TEA AND RECEPTION FOR FRENCH VISITOR

The home of Mrs. George Ferver, East Lincoln avenue, was the mecca of internationally minded women of the city Friday afternoon, when the Lawrence County Council for the Cause and Cure of War and the International department of the Women's Clubs, entertained at a tea and reception honoring Madame Carof of Paris, France, who is in the United States, studying the status of the American Woman, and making good-will talks in various places.

In the receiving line with Mme. Carof were Mrs. W. L. Cosel, Mrs. R. S. Tannehill, Mrs. A. H. Davis, Miss Alice Sterling, Mrs. A. B. Fankhouser, Miss Marguerite White, Mrs. Harriet Nowling, Mrs. J. B. McClaren and Mrs. Herbert Kirk, representing various clubs and organizations of the city. During the arrival of the near 100 women Miss Geraldine Ferver entertained with piano numbers.

After the group had found chairs in the spacious living rooms of the Ferver home, Mrs. Cosel, for the Lawrence County Council of Cause and Cure of War, welcomed Mme. Carof and the guests: Mrs. R. S. Tannehill then brought greetings from the International Relations department of the Woman's Club.

Mme. Carof, in her informal talk to the women, said it will be through the power of women of the world that war will be abolished and she launched a most graphic picture of the countries of southern Europe. She said the best way for the countries to work for peace is through a better understanding of the individuals of the various countries.

She said the difficulties in Europe now are caused by the geographic divisions of the countries, following the war, telling of how a farm, a village, or a city was cut in half, part of it belonging in German territory and part in Polish territory. These conditions, with the difficulty of getting passports to cross the frontiers, lead the residents into the direst of straits. She said that the United States' plans of education, housing, adult education and other means by which the lives of Americans are made comfortable would be impossible in European countries.

She told of the poverty of the natives of the countries, which were cut up after the world war to make new nations and said these small countries could do no constructive work, all they can do is to keep out of dangers. It was the thought of the nations to right the wrongs caused by the war, but instead they made it worse by carving in Europe.

She gave a realistic picture to the women of conditions among the villagers and working class of people.

She further stated that the nations of Europe are making an effort to evade war as another war would simply annihilate the countries.

She urged a stronger peace movement in a Federation of European states and furtherance of the League of Nations, establishing something stronger than was the outcome of treaties made while the nations were still war-minded.

At close of the talk, Mme. Carof answered many questions of the women in regard to international affairs.

Tea was served from a prettily appointed table in the dining room, with Mrs. A. B. Fankhouser, Mrs. A. H. Davis, Mrs. J. B. McClaren and Mrs. Hattie Nowling pouring.

It was the thought of the nations to right the wrongs caused by the war, but instead they made it worse by carving in Europe.

She gave a realistic picture to the women of conditions among the villagers and working class of people.

She further stated that the nations of Europe are making an effort to evade war as another war would simply annihilate the countries.

She urged a stronger peace movement in a Federation of European states and furtherance of the League of Nations, establishing something stronger than was the outcome of treaties made while the nations were still war-minded.

At close of the talk, Mme. Carof answered many questions of the women in regard to international affairs.

Tea was served from a prettily appointed table in the dining room, with Mrs. A. B. Fankhouser, Mrs. A. H. Davis, Mrs. J. B. McClaren and Mrs. Hattie Nowling pouring.

GRID DEATHS DECLINE

THE smallest death toll from football in several years is forecast by Floyd R. Eastwood, grid statistician, who estimates the total as 22, whereas last year the number was 27, the year before that 33, and for 1931 the figure was 39.

So far this fall 17 young men have died from participation in football, but only one in a college game. Ten of the fatalities resulted from high school combat, three in athletic club competition, and three in miscellaneous sandlot skirmishes. It is estimated that the waning season will claim five more lives.

A drop of 15 per cent in football deaths over last year is encouraging, especially when it helps establish more firmly the downward trend of mortality from year to year. A more open game, stricter enforcement of the rules, and a wider diffusion of sound coaching, all contribute to making the sport safer.

If the college record can be kept down to near present figures it will begin to appear that football is almost as safe for the player as baseball, basketball, or track activities. An occasional participant in any sport loses his life, from an accident, or by reason of some physical weakness or ineptitude not apparent to himself or others.

There are, of course, a great many more high schools in existence than colleges, and it would be grossly unfair to assume that scholastic football is ten times as dangerous as that played for the alma mater. High schools are more and more adopting advanced football policies which include a greater element of safety.

From the standpoint of physical safety for the players, large squads are desirable, so that replacements can be made when players become weary. This lends to prevent overstrained hearts, the aggravation of moderate injuries, and, to some extent, the fatigue-induced "wrong stances" and the like which make for broken necks and fractured vertebrae.

A DEAD PARTY

It is a bad outlook for the Republican party. It is a bad outlook for an opposition to the Roosevelt administration in 1936. Chairman Farley is natural in his exultation, even though more sober-minded Democrats may wonder whether it is best for the country that there should be only futile opposition to the party in power. Yet there is one ray of hope for the Republicans. It is that in spite of the popularity of President Roosevelt, in spite of the money poured out by the dominant party for charity, for public works, for farmers, in spite of the lack of Republican leadership, in spite of some improvement in conditions after years of depression under Republican rule, the Republican party received thirteen million out of fewer than twenty-nine million votes cast in Tuesday's election. Looked at that way it was not such a terrible rout. That isn't the practical way of looking at it, of course, for fifteen million votes were enough to give the Democratic party almost complete control of the country, but a party that can pull 45 per cent of the total vote has a nucleus around which to rally.

Give it an issue and give it strong leadership and it may well become a majority party again. That is what happened after 1928. Defeated as badly then, the Democratic party was given an issue by fate and the mistakes of the Republican administration and selected a leader who knew how to lead. The issue the Republicans are looking for may not be recognized or capitalized, if found, by the present leadership, and there doesn't seem much prospect that new leaders will be found, but the possibility is there. The Democratic party cannot afford even now to help by making issues for the opposition or by submerging its best leaders in the mass.

Nor can its leaders afford to help the opposition by resenting criticism too much, or by befouling too much those Democrats who cannot go along wholly with the dominant element in the party. The party isn't strong enough, even after the election, to cast out all dissenters, or to rebuff all who do not agree in all things with Richberg, Hopkins, Ickes, Tugwell and the "brain trust" boys. The day may come when not only the party but Mr. Roosevelt will need some of these restive members of the party and need them, not in spite of but because of some of the newer adherents like Johnson and La Follette. The Republicans have learned that even a huge majority at the polls does not justify the making of mistakes; the Democratic party may well profit by the lesson taught the opposition in 1932-1934.—Lynchburg (Va.) News.

NEW YORK SEEKS SPEAKERSHIP

Tammany Hall has decided the time has come for a New Yorker to be Speaker of the House of Representatives. So a volunteer committee has been organized in Washington to further the candidacy of Representative John J. O'Connor. His friends are going on the theory that the three leading candidates to succeed the late Speaker Rainey will be deadlocked, and that Mr. O'Connor thus will have a chance to win.

It would be strange if the overwhelming Democratic victory which is sending many green men into congress should result in the selection of a Tammany man for the position which many regard as second only in importance to the presidency. Byrns of Tennessee, Rayburn of Texas and Bankhead of Alabama are the conspicuous candidates for the speakership. At first there did not seem to be any reasonable doubt about the election of Byrns, but since the election the contest has become a free-for-all. One reason for this is that members of the house feel that they should make their own choice, so long as it is some one not objectionable to the administration.

The feeling over the fight is reflected by a statement from Representative Kennedy, of New York, who reminds his colleagues that the last speaker from New York was Theodore M. Pomeroy in 1869, a Republican. He says "the South should let the speakership go to the state where industry and finance centres."

When a state like Pennsylvania goes Democratic the Solid South may not find it so easy to dominate a Democratic congress.

The present crop of public enemies is being pared down considerably through means designed to discourage potential recruits.

WHAT DO YOU DO WHEN YOU FEEL "LOW"?

A FRIEND of mine asks me a personal question and insists on an answer. He says: "You write cheerfully enough, as if you were never depressed and miserable, but there must be times when you feel low. There must be mornings when you get out of the wrong side of the bed, when you have a grouch and think the worst of the world and nothing seems right and your own private opinion is that nothing ever WILL be right. What do you do then?"

What do I do? Well, I grouch and growl and I'm a very nasty person to have around. Nothing pleases me, nobody can satisfy me. I'm a poor husband, a difficult father, a grumpy friend.... The corners of my mouth draw down. I hate nearly everybody, and scowl at friendly puppy dogs, and if I miss a train I look upon it as a personal insult... I whistle a sad tune all day long. I shut my office door and talk in monosyllables and I tell people I'm out when I'm really in, and I decide that happy people are just simple minded idots who can't see clearly.

I wallow in my own private depression and call life a trap and the human race a miserable failure... I don't want any consolation. I don't want any help. All I ask is to be let alone, but if you do let me alone I feel deserted and abused... Sometimes this lasts only a few hours and sometimes it lasts for days... And that's how it is when I "feel low."

But deep down, inside of me, one cell in my brain is always working. That one cell whispers to me in a still, quiet voice, "Don't fool yourself this will pass! You'll get over it. Sooner or later you'll meet someone so much worse off than yourself that you'll be ashamed and sick of your groveling, selfish misery. Some day, perhaps, tomorrow, you'll wake up and see the world all shining and solid and attractive and forget to "feel low."

That's what I do when I feel low. ..I lie low and wait. I hang on desperately, knowing that sooner or later my help will come to me... So far I have never lost faith in that unknown, buoyant and brave self that is deep within me—even though it is not ME—and I know that eventually it will come to my rescue. It has never failed me yet, and I have faith even in my blackest discouragement that it never will.

EXAMINE YOUR CONSCIENCE

It has been said that to learn whether the world is better or worse today one need not do more than examine one's own conscience.

Try it and be surprised.

Are you better or worse than you were five years ago?

What are your ambitions, desires and general frame of mind in comparison with that of an earlier period?

Are you trying to be more helpful, to do things better and on a higher plane than in your earlier years?

Or do you find that your mind reverts to sordid things, possibly to foolish day dreaming of what you might do?

Is selfishness becoming more pronounced?

If given leeway, do you go the limit?

Do you get enjoyment out of good things as in days of yore?

Have you slipped from the high standards you once set for yourself?

Or have you overcome much that was detrimental and debasing?

It is to be hoped that this sort of self-examination finds you gaining in sense and intelligence, which means doing some good to others less fortunate.

Also in bringing about improvement in yourself.

THOSE "PRINCE ALBERTS"

Georgia S. Hall of Oakley, Kansas, is owner of a broadcloth "Prince Albert" coat, worn by her grandfather at his wedding in 1838. The coat is said to be in good condition.

During the Civil war period and back beyond that time, broadcloth was the correct material for a man's Sunday suit, for all visits to the city, and for use on public occasions. A broadcloth suit cost money, and had good care when not in use, and always was kept clean and in repair.

No man knew what an hour might bring forth, and the average citizen of moderate circumstances preferred to have a decent suit for a wedding, a funeral or a something of the kind.

Are you one of those persons who jiggle the lid of a mail box to be sure the letter goes in? Nothing wrong about it, of course, as it only shows that you are a careful person.

A federal judge at Kansas City says he sometimes thinks there ought to be a constitutional provision giving human beings the right to be humbugged. No need of any such law as long as human nature is what it is. You can't kill the desire of people to get something for nothing. The gambling spirit is as firmly imbedded as original sin.

The only beginners who really expect to begin at the top are relatives of the boss and authors.

It is said that every day enough coffee to make fifteen million cups is destroyed at Santos, Brazil. Since June, 1931, more than forty-three billion pounds has been burned by the government in an effort to keep up the price. Looks like foolish business, but maybe that's where we got our idea of plowing under wheat and cotton and killing hogs.

If the same interest were shown in political candidates as in the selection of a football team, this would be some country.

Plans are being made to have a parrot testify at a murder trial to be held at Toledo, O. We'd about a soon believe a parrot which repeats something that it has heard, as believe some humans who merely repeat what they've been told to tell.

Having need of some small change the mistress of the house stepped to the top of the back stairs.

"Yes's—two," faltered Bessie, "but they're my cousins, please m'm."

Since Kansas has voted against repeal it is said that the W. C. T. U. members are sharpening up their hatchets to emulate bar wrecking Carrie Nation, in an effort to keep the state arid in fact as well as in theory. They sure hate the "pizen" out in Kansas.

If they mint more silver dollars, as is now proposed, we can see where we're going to have to have stronger stuff in our pockets. That is, if we happen to get any of the new silver dollars.

Out in Oklahoma they have a new tonsorial license law. One of the questions asked barbers who are seeking a license to ply their vocation is, how many hairs are there on the average head? Pennsylvania has a barber law too but we are not familiar with the questionnaire. But if any of you upper valley barbers are asked by a state commission agent how many hairs are on the average human head, tell him not more than 120,000 and not less than 100,000. Except of course in the case of the bald domed individual. You'll have to guess at that.

Mrs. Roosevelt has bought a dinner set containing one thousand pieces, and the White House servants are wondering what will happen to them if they let a dish fall and break up that 1,000-piece set. There'd have been nothing to worry about if Mrs. Roosevelt had come to New Castle and bought her dinner set from the local pottery. They can always furnish a duplicate dish.

We realize that most people have had a lot of time on their hands during recent years, but a man who must have little use for the time at his disposal says he has figured out that a baby crying for one hour uses enough potential energy to climb to the top of the Washington monument. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Here are some answers from examination papers of school children. They were gathered by the research department of Ohio State university.

A grass widow is the wife of a vegetarian.

A man who marries twice commits bigotry.

In Christianity a man may have only one wife; that is called monotony.

A spinster is a bachelor's wife.

Solomon had 300 wives and 700 porcupines.

We notice on the marriage license docket that it frequently happens that the man and woman give the same address. The only way we can figure it out is that the man wants to cut down expenses, and so marries his housekeeper.

What is more intriguing than the red tail light of an automobile as it wends its way over a nice quiet country road? Especially to a fellow who thinks his best girl may be in the car with another fellow.

A total of over 242 applications to compete in civil service examinations for state liquor store clerkships are on file for this district. And to think that it was only a short time ago that it was a crime to have a little home brew in the cellar. Times have certainly changed.

It's a happy home if the thermometer says 98 and the hungry man suggests having cold suppers.

The French have decided that no foreigners will be employed in public works or on other government contracts. Quite a contrast from the system here where they seem to get the preference.

During the fall season farmers brought in so much big corn and potatoes, Jumbo squashes and prize pumpkins and other fruits and vegetables, that our office sometimes looked like a community market, but not a single jug of cider. Must be the aforesaid farmers are drinking all the cider themselves.

DEATH IN GOOD CAUSE

"Mother, papa wouldn't murder anybody, would he?"

"Why, certainly not, child! What makes you think so?"

"Well, I just heard him down in the cellar saying, 'Let's kill the other two, George.'"

It's not so very long ago when the campaign slogan was "The full dinner pail." Then "a car in every garage." Now a lot of the late defeated are wondering if it's going to be "A Democrat in every office."

It's getting pretty near the time of year when it will be necessary to save the nickels and dimes for next year's auto license. A lot of people saved this year by allowing their cars to sleep in their garages, but they weren't happy.

Local viewpoints differ. A local girl was discussing the coming wedding of a friend to a man of fifty and remarked that she considered it a great mistake. He's either 25 years too old," she said, "or 25 years too young."

A north hill boy confides in us that he asked his best girl if he was good enough for her, and she replied, "No, you are not good enough for me but you are too good for any other girl." Just what did she mean?

Still, people would covet character as they covet money if character caused the world to lift its hat.

When a good fellow is praised for buying the drinks, how he hates to go home to a wife who is grouchy because she needs shoes.

Yet the man who says he reads novels would seem a braggart if the rest of us were unable to read.

Think how many more people would be killed by cars if taxes didn't teach them the art of dodging.

Two Bank Payoff Bills
What Types of Trains?
No More Gold—Cheers!

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A bank depositors' payoff may be more popular in the new congress than a veterans' payoff.

Representative Clarence McLeod of Michigan again will introduce bank payoff bills.

One bill will call for a 100 per cent payoff (approximately two billion dollars).

The other will call for a revision of the bill passed at the last session. Under that bill the RFC has the power to buy assets of closed banks at the prevailing prices. But that meant literally nothing—for closed banks already had borrowed to the limit from the RFC on such figures.

The revised bill will force the RFC to buy securities of closed banks at "a reasonable value"—or at prices that may be expected some years hence.

WHAT'S PROGRESS?

That stream-lined train publicity might have been overdone. There are some kickbacks to the publicity that the Union Pacific arranged for itself with its run from Los Angeles to New York.

Other railroads, making their own experiments, are not certain that the Union Pacific has the best type train. Anyway, they're a bit angry.

The Santa Fe, chief competitor of the U. P. for the Chicago-Los Angeles business—in fact the road having the bulk of the passenger trade—is experimenting with a high-powered stream-lined Diesel engine to pull regular equipment. And the Santa Fe will publicize its beliefs that larger and heavier equipment will prove more comfortable than the stream-lined cars.

It is probable that the eventual outcome will be lighter weight regular size equipment with high-powered engines.

In the east, the Pennsylvania believes its heavy investments in electrification, through dense traffic, will be better than individual stream-lined trains. The Baltimore & Ohio, in competition, will have regular equipment stream-lined.

Steam is not outmoded. Streamlining of steam locomotives may gain greater headway than construction of new gas-electric locomotives. The Baltimore & Ohio is testing both.

PARADOX

The Roosevelt administration evidently is relieved that a renewed flow of gold to the United States has been halted. Such a flow might do two things (1) Unstabilize all the currencies of the world by dragging France and allied countries from the gold standard, and (2) depressing prices in the United States when the administration desires them to rise.

CONFIDENCE

The recent maneuvers of the Roosevelt administration in conjunction with business have done a great deal to re-establish confidence abroad and among international business men.

SATURDAY, NOV. 24

World War Day-By-Day—Nov. 24, 1914—For some days the predreadnaught Bulwark, 15,000 tons, had lain at Sheerness. It was a few minutes before 8 a. m. when a roaring, rumbling sound was heard by almost everybody on the neighboring isle of Sheppey, and by many residents on the mainland. The first assumption was that a Zeppelin raid had become an accomplished fact—that the first bombs had been dropped on English soil. But the silence which followed, with the cloud of dense smoke which hung over the river prepared the people for something worse.

When the smoke from the great sheet of flame that had suddenly leaped up from her forward had cleared away, the Bulwark was gone. Down with her west 700 men. None was left to say whether the internal explosion was caused by the enemy. There was small comfort in the disaster for Germans. It did not affect the blockade that had placed the whole of their country in a state of siege.

The blockade had brought paralysis to the German merchant marine. The seas now were closed to the German flag while British, French and even Belgian ships still sailed the ocean and carried to French and British ports essential munitions and food supplies; and brought to France the colonial armies from Australia, Canada, India which enabled the Allies to redress the balance which was with Germany at the outset. German explanations and German statements, save for the few fugitive messages sent through the air, were condemned to satisfy German readers alone; while the world, the neutral world to which Germany desired and needed to appeal, found its evidence and drew its conclusions from anti-German sources alone.

SUNDAY

The World War Day-By-Day—Nov. 25, 1914—The second anniversary of the International Socialist Congress at Basle in which protest was made against the approaching European war was made. Simultaneously hundreds had been hurt in an anti-war demonstration in Budapest. A committee of the Social Democrat party of Germany had declared: "World war threatens! The ruling classes, who gag, despise and exploit you in time of peace, now want to turn you into cannon fodder. Let the cars of the tyrants everywhere hear our shout: 'We will have no war.' International fraternalisation for ever!" The Socialist parties of the other countries had echoed the warning.

But now a million men lay dead or maimed, and the war was only beginning. The protests had been chocked off. Mass murder was being practiced on a scale unparalleled in all history. It was being accepted by the people. Ironically an individual murder was still capable of arousing indignation. The slaying of a French wife on this date roused sensational interest in Paris.

THOUGHTS AFTER CHANGING A TYPEWRITER RIBBON

My grandfather long was a clever mechanic,
He knew the "innards" of watches and things.
Nothing it seemed could throw him in a panic,
He was at ease among fly wheels and springs.
He could fix boilers and tea kettles leaky,
He could mend door bells and overcoat stands;
He could put oil where the hinges were squeaky,
He was a wonder, I'm told, with his hands.

Give him a hammer and wrench, and contented
He'd put a shelf where a shelf ought to be.
Many a gadget my granddad invented,
At keeping things going a wizard was he!
Great was his joy when he found something broken,
That meant a task he delighted to do.
Oft by my granddad was this sentence spoken:
"I'll have it fixed in a jiffy, for you."

Where is that skill I'm supposed to inherit?
Helpless I stand when the needs for it come.
Nothing's so simple that I can repair it!
I can't drive a nail without hitting my thumb.
Mechanics, my grandfather's talk was so glib on,
Are mysteries deep which in terror I face;
Why I can't change even a typewriter ribbon
Without making a mess of myself and the place.

Correctly Speaking—

Never divide a monosyllable.

GRID DEATHS DECLINE

THE smallest death toll from football in several years is forecast by Floyd R. Eastwood, grid statistician, who estimates the total as 22, whereas last year the number was 27, the year before that 33, and for 1931 the figure was 39.

So far this fall 17 young men have died from participation in football, but only one in a college game. Ten of the fatalities resulted from high school combat, three in athletic club competition, and three in miscellaneous sandlot skirmishes. It is estimated that the waning season will claim five more lives.

A drop of 15 per cent in football deaths over last year is encouraging, especially when it helps establish more firmly the downward trend of mortality from year to year. A more open game, stricter enforcement of the rules, and a wider diffusion of sound coaching, all contribute to making the sport safer.

If the college record can be kept down to near present figures it will begin to appear that football is almost as safe for the player as baseball, basketball, or track activities. An occasional participant in any sport loses his life, from an accident, or by reason of some physical weakness or ineptitude not apparent to himself or others.

There are, of course, a great many more high schools in existence than colleges, and it would be grossly unfair to assume that scholastic football is ten times as dangerous as that played for the alma mater. High schools are more and more adopting advanced football policies which include a greater element of safety.

From the standpoint of physical safety for the players, large squads are desirable, so that replacements can be made when players become weary. This tends to prevent overstrained hearts, the aggravation of moderate injuries, and, to some extent, the fatigue-induced "wrong stances" and the like which make for broken necks and fractured vertebrae.

A DEAD PARTY

It is a bad outlook for the Republican party. It is a bad outlook for an opposition to the Roosevelt administration in 1936. Chairman Farley is natural in his exultation, even though more sober-minded Democrats may wonder whether it is best for the country that there should be only futile opposition to the party in power. Yet there is one ray of hope for the Republicans. It is that in spite of the popularity of President Roosevelt, in spite of the money poured out by the dominant party for charity, for public works, for farmers, in spite of the lack of Republican leadership, in spite of some improvement in conditions after years of depression under Republican rule, the Republican party received thirteen million out of fewer than twenty-nine million votes cast in Tuesday's election. Looked at that way it was not such a terrible rout. That isn't the practical way of looking at it, of course, for fifteen million votes were enough to give the Democratic party almost complete control of the country, but a party that can pull 45 per cent of the total vote has a nucleus around which to rally.

Give it an issue and give it strong leadership and it may well become a majority party again. That is what happened after 1928. Defeated as badly then, the Democratic party was given an issue by fate and the mistakes of the Republican administration and selected a leader who knew how to lead. The issue the Republicans are looking for may not be recognized or capitalized, if found, by the present leadership, and there doesn't seem much prospect that new leaders will be found, but the possibility is there. The Democratic party cannot afford even now to help by making issues for the opposition or by submerging its best leaders in the mass.

Nor can its leaders afford to help the opposition by resenting criticism too much, or by befouling too much those Democrats who cannot go along wholly with the dominant element in the party. The party isn't strong enough, even after the election, to cast out all dissenters, or to rebuff all who do not agree in all things with Richberg, Hopkins, Ickes, Tugwell and the "brain trust" boys. The day may come when not only the party but Mr. Roosevelt will need some of these restive members of the party and need them, not in spite of but because of some of the newer adherents like Johnson and La Follette. The Republicans have learned that even a huge majority at the polls does not justify the making of mistakes; the Democratic party may well profit by the lesson taught the opposition in 1932-1934.—Lynchburg (Va.) News.

NEW YORK SEEKS SPEAKERSHIP

Tammany Hall has decided the time has come for a New Yorker to be Speaker of the House of Representatives. So a volunteer committee has been organized in Washington to further the candidacy of Representative John J. O'Connor. His friends are going on the theory that the three leading candidates to succeed the late Speaker Rainey will be deadlocked, and that Mr. O'Connor thus will have a chance to win.

It would be strange if the overwhelming Democratic victory which is sending many green men into congress should result in the selection of a Tammany man for the position which many regard as second only in importance to the presidency. Byrns of Tennessee, Rayburn of Texas and Bankhead of Alabama are the conspicuous candidates for the speakership. At first there did not seem to be any reasonable doubt about the election of Byrns, but since the election the contest has become a free-for-all. One reason for this is that members of the house feel that they should make their own choice, so long as it is some one not objectionable to the administration.

The feeling over the fight is reflected by a statement from Representative Kennedy, of New York, who reminds his colleagues that the last speaker from New York was Theodore M. Pomeroy in 1869, a Republican. He says "the South should let the speakership go to the state where industry and finance centres."

When a state like Pennsylvania goes Democratic the Solid South may not find it so easy to dominate a Democratic congress.

WHAT DO YOU DO WHEN YOU FEEL "LOW"?

A FRIEND of mine asks me a personal question and insists on an answer. He says: "You write cheerfully enough, as if you were never depressed and miserable, but there must be times when you feel low. There must be mornings when you get out of the wrong side of the bed, when you have a grouch and think the worst of the world and nothing seems right and your own private opinion is that nothing ever WILL be right. What do you do then?"

What do I do? Well, I grouch and growl and I'm a very nasty person to have around. Nothing pleases me, nobody can satisfy me. I'm a poor husband, a difficult father, a grumpy friend....The corners of my mouth draw down. I hate nearly everybody, and scowl at friendly puppy dogs, and if I miss a train I look upon it as a personal insult... I whistle a sad tune all day long. I shut my office door and talk in monosyllables and I tell people I'm out when I'm really in, and I decide that happy people are just simple minded idots who can't see clearly.

I wallow in my own private depression and call life a trap and the human race a miserable failure...I don't want any consolation. I don't want any help. All I ask is to be let alone, but if you do let me alone I feel deserted and abused...Sometimes this lasts only a few hours and sometimes it lasts for days... And that's how it is when I "feel low."

But deep down, inside of me, one cell in my brain is always working. That one cell whispers to me in a still, quiet voice, "Don't fool yourself this will pass! You'll get over it. Sooner or later you'll meet someone so much worse off than yourself that you'll be ashamed and sick of your groveling, selfish misery. Some day, perhaps, tomorrow, you'll wake up and see the world all shining and solid and attractive and forget to "feel low."

That's what I do when I feel low. ..I lie low and wait. I hang on desperately, knowing that sooner or later my help will come to me...So far I have never lost faith in that unknown, buoyant and brave self that is deep within me—even though it is not ME—and I know that eventually it will come to my rescue. It has never failed me yet, and I have faith even in my blackest discouragement that it never will.

EXAMINE YOUR CONSCIENCE

It has been said that to learn whether the world is better or worse today one need not do more than examine one's own conscience.

Try it and be surprised.

Are you better or worse than you were five years ago?

What are your ambitions, desires and general frame of mind in comparison with that of an earlier period?

Are you trying to be more helpful, to do things better and on a higher plane than in your earlier years?

Or do you find that your mind reverts to sordid things, possibly to foolish day dreaming of what you might do?

Is selfishness becoming more pronounced?

If given leeway, do you go the limit?

Do you get enjoyment out of good things as in days of yore?

Have you slipped from the high standards you once set for yourself?

Or have you overcome much that was detrimental and debasing?

It is to be hoped that this sort of self-examination finds you gaining in sense and intelligence, which means doing some good to others less fortunate.

Also in bringing about improvement in yourself.

THOSE "PRINCE ALBERTS"

Georgia S. Hall of Oakley, Kansas, is owner of a broadcloth "Prince Albert," coat, worn by her grandfather at his wedding in 1838. The coat is said to be in good condition.

During the Civil war period and back beyond that time, broadcloth was the correct material for a man's Sunday suit, for all visits to the city, and for use on public occasions. A broadcloth suit cost money, and had good care when not in use, and always was kept clean and in repair.

No man knew what an hour might bring forth, and the average citizen of moderate circumstances preferred to have a decent suit for a wedding, a funeral or a something of the kind.

A federal judge at Kansas City says he sometimes thinks there ought to be a constitutional provision giving human beings the right to be humbugged. No need of any such law as long as human nature is what it is. You can't kill the desire of people to get something for nothing. The gambling spirit is as firmly imbedded as original sin.

We realize that most people have had a lot of time on their hands during recent years, but a man who must have little use for the time at his disposal says he has figured out that a baby crying for one hour uses enough potential energy to climb to the top of the Washington monument. Piffling business, we'd call it.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Here are some answers from examination papers of school children. They were gathered by the research department of Ohio State university.

A grass widow is the wife of a vegetarian.

A man who marries twice commits bigotry.

In Christianity a man may have only one wife; that is called monotony.

A spinster is a bachelor's wife.

Solomon had 300 wives and 700 porcupines.

We notice on the marriage license docket that it frequently happens that the man and woman give the same address. The only way we can figure it out is that the man wants to cut down expenses, and so marries his housekeeper.

What is more intriguing than the red tail light of an automobile as it wends its way over a nice quiet country road? Especially to a fellow who thinks his best girl may be in the car with another fellow.

A total of over 242 applications to compete in civil service examinations for state liquor store clerkships are on file for this district. And to think that it was only a short time ago that it was a crime to have a little home brew in the cellar. Times have certainly changed.

It's a happy home if the thermometer says 98 and the hungry man suggests having cold suppers.

The French have decided that no foreigners will be employed in public works or on other government contracts. Quite a contrast from the system here where they seem to get the preference.

During the fall season farmers brought in so much big corn and potatoes, jumbo squashes and prize pumpkins and other fruits and vegetables, that our office sometimes looked like a community market, but not a single jug of cider. Must be the aforesaid farmers are drinking all the cider themselves.

DEATH IN GOOD CAUSE

"Mother, papa wouldn't murder anybody, would he?"

"Why, certainly not, child! What makes you think so?"

"Well, I just heard him down in the cellar saying, 'Let's kill the other two, George.'"

It's not so very long ago when the campaign slogan was "the full dinner pail." Then "a car in every garage." Now a lot of the late defeated are wondering if it's going to be "A Democrat in every office."

It's getting pretty near the time of year when it will be necessary to save the nickels and dimes for next year's auto license. A lot of people saved this year by allowing their cars to sleep in their garages, but they weren't happy.

Local viewpoints differ. A local girl was discussing the coming wedding of a friend to a man of fifty and remarked that she considered it a great mistake. He's either 25 years too old," she said, "or 25 years too young."

A north hill boy confides in us that he asked his best girl if he was good enough for her, and she replied, "No, you are not good enough for me but you are too good for any other girl." Just what did she mean?

Still, people would covet character as they covet money if character caused the world to lift its hat.

When a good fellow is praised for buying the drinks, how he hates to go home to a wife who is grouchy because she needs shoes.

Yet the man who says he reads novels would seem a braggart if the rest of us were unable to read.

Think how many more people would be killed by cars if taxes didn't teach them the art of dodging.

Two Bank Payoff Bills
What Types of Trains?
No More Gold—Cheers!

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A bank depositors' payoff may be more popular in the new congress than a veterans' payoff.

Representative Clarence McLeod of Michigan again will introduce bank payoff bills.

One bill will call for a 100 per cent payoff (approximately two billion dollars).

The other will call for a revision of the bill passed at the last session. Under that bill the RFC has the power to buy assets of closed banks at the prevailing prices. But that meant literally nothing—for closed banks already had borrowed to the limit from the RFC on such figures.

The revised bill will force the RFC to buy securities of closed banks at "a reasonable value"—or at prices that may be expected some years hence.

WHAT'S PROGRESS?

That stream-lined train publicity might have been overdone. There are some kickbacks to the publicity that the Union Pacific arranged for itself with its run from Los Angeles to New York.

Other railroads, making their own experiments, are not certain that the Union Pacific has the best type train. Anyway, they're a bit angry.

The Santa Fe, chief competitor of the U. P. for the Chicago-Los Angeles business—in fact the road having the bulk of the passenger trade—is experimenting with a high-powered stream-lined Diesel engine to pull regular equipment. And the Santa Fe will publicize its beliefs that larger and heavier equipment will prove more comfortable than the stream-lined cars.

It is probable that the eventual outcome will be lighter weight regular size equipment with high-powered engines.

In the east, the Pennsylvania believes its heavy investments in electrification, through dense traffic, will be better than individual stream-lined trains. The Baltimore & Ohio, in competition, will have regular equipment stream-lined.

Steam is not outmoded. Stream-lining of steam locomotives may gain greater headway than construction of new gas-electric locomotives. The Baltimore & Ohio is testing both.

PARADOX

The Roosevelt administration evidently is relieved that a renewed flow of gold to the United States has been halted. Such a flow might do two things (1) Unstabilize all the currencies of the world by dragging France and allied countries from the gold standard, and (2) depressing prices in the United States when the administration desires them to rise.

CONFIDENCE

The recent maneuvers of the Roosevelt administration in conjunction with business have done a great deal to re-establish confidence abroad and among international business men.

SATURDAY, NOV. 24

World War Day-By-Day—Nov. 24, 1914—For some days the predreadnaught Bulwark, 15,000 tons, had lain at Sheerness. It was a few minutes before 8 a. m. when a roaring, rumbling sound was heard by almost everybody on the neighboring isle of Sheppey, and by many residents on the mainland. The first assumption was that a Zeppelin raid had become an accomplished fact—that the first bombs had been dropped on English soil. But the silence which followed, with the cloud of dense smoke which hung over the river prepared the people for something worse.

When the smoke from the great sheet of flame that had suddenly leaped up from her forward had cleared away, the Bulwark was gone. Down with her went 700 men. None was left to say whether the internal explosion was caused by the enemy. There was small comfort in the disaster for Germans. It did not affect the blockade that had placed the whole of their country in a state of siege.

The blockade had brought paralysis to the German merchant marine. The seas now were closed to the German flag while British, French and even Belgian ships still sailed the ocean and carried to French and British ports essential munitions and food supplies; and brought to France the colonial armies from Australia, Canada, India which enabled the Allies to redress the balance which was with Germany at the outset. German explanations and German statements, save for the few fugitive messages sent through the air, were condemned to satisfy German readers alone; while the world, the neutral world to which Germany desired and needed to appeal, found its evidence and drew its conclusions from anti-German sources alone.

SUNDAY

The World War Day-By-Day—Nov. 25, 1914—The second anniversary of the International Socialist Congress at Basle in which protest was made against the approaching European war was made. Simultaneously hundreds had been hurt in an anti-war demonstration in Budapest. A committee of the Social Democrat party of Germany had declared: "World war threatens! The ruling classes, who gag, despise and exploit you in time of peace, now want to turn you into cannon fodder. Let the ears of the tyrants everywhere hear our shout: 'We will have no war!' International fraternalisation for ever!" The Socialist parties of the other countries had echoed the warning.

But now a million men lay dead or maimed, and the war was only beginning. The protests had been checked off. Mass murder was being practiced on a scale unparalleled in all history. It was being accepted by the people. Ironically an individual murder was still capable of arousing indignation. The slaying of a French wife on this date roused sensational interest in Paris.

THOUGHTS AFTER CHANGING A TYPEWRITER RIBBON

My grandfather long was a clever mechanic.
He knew the "innards" of watches and things.
Nothing it seemed could throw him in a panic.
He was at ease among fly wheels and springs.
He could fix boilers and tea kettles leaky.
He could mend door bells and overcoat stands;
He could put oil where the hinges were squeaky.
He was a wonder, I'm told, with his hands.

Give him a hammer and wrench, and contented
He'd put a shelf where a shelf ought to be.
Many a gadget my granddad invented.
At keeping things going a wizard was he!
Great was his joy when he found something broken,
That meant a task he delighted to do.
Oft by my granddad was this sentence spoken:
"I'll have it fixed in a jiffy, for you."

Where is that skill I'm supposed to inherit?
Helpless I stand when the needs for it come.
Nothing's so simple that I can repair it!
I can't drive a nail without hitting my thumb.
Mechanics, my grandfather's talk was so glib on,
Are mysteries deep which in terror I face;
Why I can't change even a typewriter ribbon
Without making a mess of myself and the place.

Correctly Speaking—

Never divide a monosyllable.

GRID DEATHS DECLINE

THE smallest death toll from football in several years is forecast by Floyd R. Eastwood, grid statistician, who estimates the total as 22, whereas last year the number was 27, the year before that 33, and for 1931 the figure was 39.

So far this fall 17 young men have died from participation in football, but only one in a college game. Ten of the fatalities resulted from high school combat, three in athletic club competition, and three in miscellaneous sandlot skirmishes. It is estimated that the waning season will claim five more lives.

A drop of 15 per cent in football deaths over last year is encouraging, especially when it helps establish more firmly the downward trend of mortality from year to year. A more open game, stricter enforcement of the rules, and a wider diffusion of sound coaching, all contribute to making the sport safer.

If the college record can be kept down to near present figures it will begin to appear that football is almost as safe for the player as baseball, basketball, or track activities. An occasional participant in any sport loses his life, from an accident, or by reason of some physical weakness or ineptitude not apparent to himself or others.

There are, of course, a great many more high schools in existence than colleges, and it would be grossly unfair to assume that scholastic football is ten times as dangerous as that played for the alma mater. High schools are more and more adopting advanced football policies which include a greater element of safety.

From the standpoint of physical safety for the players, large squads are desirable, so that replacements can be made when players become weary. This tends to prevent overstrained hearts, the aggravation of moderate injuries, and, to some extent, the fatigue-induced "wrong stances" and the like which make for broken necks and fractured vertebrae.

A DEAD PARTY

It is a bad outlook for the Republican party. It is a bad outlook for an opposition to the Roosevelt administration in 1936. Chairman Farley is natural in his exultation, even though more sober-minded Democrats may wonder whether it is best for the country that there should be only futile opposition to the party in power. Yet there is one ray of hope for the Republicans. It is that in spite of the popularity of President Roosevelt, in spite of the money poured out by the dominant party for charity, for public works, for farmers, in spite of the lack of Republican leadership, in spite of some improvement in conditions after years of depression under Republican rule, the Republican party received thirteen million out of fewer than twenty-nine million votes cast in Tuesday's election. Looked at that way it was not such a terrible rout. That isn't the practical way of looking at it, of course, for fifteen million votes were enough to give the Democratic party almost complete control of the country, but a party that can pull 45 per cent of the total vote has a nucleus around which to rally.

Give it an issue and give it strong leadership and it may well become a majority party again. That is what happened after 1928. Defeated as badly then, the Democratic party was given an issue by fate and the mistakes of the Republican administration and selected a leader who knew how to lead. The issue the Republicans are looking for may not be recognized or capitalized, if found, by the present leadership, and there doesn't seem much prospect that new leaders will be found, but the possibility is there. The Democratic party cannot afford even now to help by making issues for the opposition or by submerging its best leaders in the mass.

Nor can its leaders afford to help the opposition by resenting criticism too much, or by befouling too much those Democrats who cannot go along wholly with the dominant element in the party. The party isn't strong enough, even after the election, to cast out all dissenters, or to rebuff all who do not agree in all things with Richberg, Hopkins, Ickes, Tugwell and the "brain trust" boys. The day may come when not only the party but Mr. Roosevelt will need some of these restive members of the party and need them, not in spite of but because of some of the newer adherents like Johnson and La Follette. The Republicans have learned that even a huge majority at the polls does not justify the making of mistakes; the Democratic party may well profit by the lesson taught the opposition in 1932-1934.—Lynchburg (Va.) News.

NEW YORK SEEKS SPEAKERSHIP

Tammany Hall has decided the time has come for a New Yorker to be Speaker of the House of Representatives. So a volunteer committee has been organized in Washington to further the candidacy of Representative John J. O'Connor. His friends are going on the theory that the three leading candidates to succeed the late Speaker Rainey will be deadlocked, and that Mr. O'Connor thus will have a chance to win.

It would be strange if the overwhelming Democratic victory which is sending many green men into congress should result in the selection of a Tammany man for the position which many regard as second only in importance to the presidency. Byrns of Tennessee, Rayburn of Texas and Bankhead of Alabama are the conspicuous candidates for the speakership. At first there did not seem to be any reasonable doubt about the election of Byrns, but since the election the contest has become a free-for-all. One reason for this is that members of the house feel that they should make their own choice, so long as it is some one not objectionable to the administration.

The feeling over the fight is reflected by a statement from Representative Kennedy, of New York, who reminds his colleagues that the last speaker from New York was Theodore M. Pomeroy in 1869, a Republican. He says "the South should let the speakership go to the state where industry and finance centres."

When a state like Pennsylvania goes Democratic the Solid South may not find it so easy to dominate a Democratic congress.

WHAT DO YOU DO WHEN YOU FEEL "LOW"?

A FRIEND of mine asks me a personal question and insists on an answer. He says: "You write cheerfully enough, as if you were never depressed and miserable, but there must be times when you feel low. There must be mornings when you get out of the wrong side of the bed, when you have a grouch and think the worst of the world and nothing seems right and your own private opinion is that nothng ever WILL be right. What do you do then?"

What do I do? Well, I grouch and growl and I'm a very nasty person to have around. Nothing pleases me, nobody can satisfy me. I'm a poor husband, a difficult father, a grumpy friend....The corners of my mouth draw down. I hate nearly everybody, and scowl at friendly puppy dogs, and if I miss a train I look upon it as a personal insult... I whistle a sad tune all day long. I shut my office door and talk in monosyllables and I tell people I'm out when I'm really in, and I decide that happy people are just simple minded idots who can't see clearly.

I wallow in my own private depression and call life a trap and the human race a miserable failure...I don't want any consolation. I don't want any help. All I ask is to be let alone, but if you do let me alone I feel deserted and abused...Sometimes this lasts only a few hours and sometimes it lasts for days... And that's how it is when I "feel low."

But deep down, inside of me, one cell in my brain is always working. That one cell whispers to me in a still, quiet voice, "Don't fool yourself this will pass! You'll get over it. Sooner or later you'll meet someone so much worse off than yourself that you'll be ashamed and sick of your groveling, selfish misery. Some day, perhaps, tomorrow, you'll wake up and see the world all shining and solid and attractive and forget to "feel low."

That's what I do when I feel low. ..I lie low and wait. I hang on desperately, knowing that sooner or later my help will come to me...So far I have never lost faith in that unknown, buoyant and brave self that is deep within me—even though it is not ME—and I know that eventually it will come to my rescue. It has never failed me yet, and I have faith even in my blackest discouragement that it never will.

EXAMINE YOUR CONSCIENCE

It has been said that to learn whether the world is better or worse today one need not do more than examine one's own conscience.

Try it and be surprised.

Are you better or worse than you were five years ago?

What are your ambitions, desires and general frame of mind in comparison with that of an earlier period?

Are you trying to be more helpful to do things better and on a higher plane than in your earlier years?

Or do you find that your mind reverts to sordid things, possibly to foolish day dreaming of what you might do?

Is selfishness becoming more pronounced?

If given leeway, do you go the limit?

Do you get enjoyment out of good things as in days of yore?

Have you silpped from the high standards you once set for yourself?

Or have you overcome much that was detrimental and debasing?

It is to be hoped that this sort of self-examination finds you gaining in sense and intelligence, which means doing some good to others less fortunate.

Also in bringing about improvement in yourself.

THOSE "PRINCE ALBERTS"

Georgia S. Hall of Oakley, Kansas, is owner of a broadcloth "Prince Albert" coat, worn by her grandfather at his wedding in 1838. The coat is said to be in good condition.

During the Civil war period and back beyond that time, broadcloth was the correct material for a man's Sunday suit, for all visits to the city, and for use on public occasions. A broadcloth suit cost money, and had good care when not in use, and always was kept clean and in repair.

No man knew what an hour might bring forth, and the average citizen of moderate circumstances preferred to have a decent suit for a wedding, a funeral or a something of the kind.

"Why, certainly not, child! What makes you think so?"

"Well, I just heard him down in the cellar saying, 'Let's kill the other two, George.'"

It's not so very long ago when the campaign slogan was "the full dinner pail." Then "a car in every garage." Now a lot of the late defeated are wondering if it's going to be "A Democrat in every office."

It's getting pretty near the time of year when it will be necessary to save the nickels and dimes for next year's auto license. A lot of people saved this year by allowing their cars to sleep in their garages, but they weren't happy.

Local viewpoints differ. A local girl was dicussing the coming wedding of a friend to a man of fifty and remarked that she considered it a great mistake. He's either 25 years too old," she said, "or 25 years too young."

A north hill boy confides in us that he asked his best girl if he was good enough for her, and she replied, "No, you are not good enough for me but you are too good for any other girl." Just what did she mean?

Still, people would covet character as they covet money if character caused the world to lift its hat.

When a good fellow is praised for buying the drinks, how he hates to go home to a wife who is grouchy because she needs shoes.

Yet the man who says he reads novels would seem a braggart if the rest of us were unable to read.

Think how many more people would be killed by cars if taxes didn't teach them the art of dodging.

Two Bank Payoff Bills
What Types of Trains?
No More Gold–Cheers!

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A bank depositors' payoff may be more popular in the new congress than a veterans' payoff.

Representative Clarence McLeod of Michigan again will introduce bank payoff bills.

One bill will call for a 100 per cent payoff (approximately two billion dollars).

The other will call for a revision of the bill passed at the last session. Under that bill the RFC has the power to buy assets of closed banks at the prevailing prices. But that meant literally nothing—for closed banks already had borrowed to the limit from the RFC on such figures.

The revised bill will force the RFC to buy securities of closed banks at "a reasonable value"—or at prices that may be expected some years hence.

WHAT'S PROGRESS?

That stream-lined train publicity might have been overdone. There are some kickbacks to the publicity that the Union Pacific arranged for itself with its run from Los Angeles to New York.

Other railroads, making their own experiments, are not certain that the Union Pacific has the best type train. Anyway, they're a bit angry.

The Santa Fe, chief competitor of the U. P. for the Chicago-Los Angeles business—in fact the road having the bulk of the passenger trade—is experimenting with a high-powered stream-lined Diesel engine to pull regular equipment. And the Santa Fe will publicize its beliefs that larger and heavier equipment will prove more comfortable than the stream-lined cars.

It is probable that the eventual outcome will be lighter weight regular size equipment with high-powered engines.

In the east, the Pennsylvania believes its heavy investments in electrification, through dense traffic, will be better than individual stream-lined trains. The Baltimore & Ohio, in competition, will have regular equipment stream-lined.

Steam is not outmoded. Streamlining of steam locomotives may gain greater headway than construction of new gas-electric locomotives. The Baltimore & Ohio is testing both.

LUCK

One hotel chain is working its way to old-time prosperity because of fortunate circumstances.

It happened to have hotels in both world series towns, as well as in several other cities where there has been one convention after another.

PARADOX

The Roosevelt administration evidently is relieved that a renewed flow of gold to the United States has been halted. Such a flow might do two things (1) Unstabilize all the currencies of the world by dragging France and allied countries from the gold standard, and (2) depressing prices in the United States when the administration desires them to rise.

CONFIDENCE

The recent maneuvers of the Roosevelt administration in conjunction with business have done a great deal to re-establish confidence abroad and among international business men.

Funds are being repatriated.

SATURDAY, NOV. 24

World War Day-By-Day—Nov. 24, 1914—For some days the predreadnaught Bulwark, 15,000 tons, had lain at Sheerness. It was a few minutes before 8 a. m. when a roaring, rumbling sound was heard by almost everybody on the neighboring isle of Sheppey, and by many residents on the mainland. The first assumption was that a Zeppelin raid had become an accomplished fact—that the first bombs had been dropped on English soil. But the silence which followed, with the cloud of dense smoke which hung over the river prepared the people for something worse.

When the smoke from the great sheet of flame that had suddenly leaped up from her forward had cleared away, the Bulwark was gone. Down with her west 700 men. None was left to say whether the internal explosion was caused by the enemy. There was small comfort in the disaster for Germans. It did not affect the blockade that had placed the whole of their country in a state of siege.

The blockade had brought paralysis to the German merchant marine. The seas now were closed to the German flag while British, French and even Belgian ships still sailed the ocean and carried to French and British ports essential munitions and food supplies; and brought to France the colonial armies from Australia, Canada, India which enabled the Allies to redress the balance which was with Germany at the outset. German explanations and German statements, save for the few fugitive messages sent through the air, were condemned to satisfy German readers alone; while the world, the neutral world to which Germany desired and needed to appeal, found its evidence and drew its conclusions from anti-German sources alone.

History Up-To-Date—Nov. 24, 1813—The governor of Louisiana, W. C. Claiborne, advertised a reward of $500 for the arrest of Jean Lafitte, pirate.

Two days later, Lafitte placed advertisements alongside those of the governor, offering $1500 for the arrest of W. C. Claiborne! He walked the streets of New Orleans, undetered; the governor remained under guard!

Nov. 24, 1821—Henry Thomas Buckle was born. He learned 18 languages and wrote the classic Introduction to the History of England, one of the most enduring works in western literature.

He never went to school!

Nov. 24, 1859—Two men born the same day attained world fame at the same time. While Abraham Lincoln was making the speeches in the east which assured his nomination to the presidency the next year, Charles Darwin was writing The Origin of the Species. Published on this date, it became the most important scientific work of the 19th century. But Darwin was not the originator of the human evolution hypothesis, nor even the first to apply the conception of descent to animal and plant organisms.

Nov. 24 1885—Alfonso XII, king of Spain, died. His son and successor—the present exiled Alfonso XIII—was not born until six months later! Like John II of France, the latter was a king before he was born.

SUNDAY

The World War Day-By-Day—Nov. 25, 1914—The second anniversary of the International Socialist Congress at Basle in which protest was made against the approaching European war was made. Simultaneously hundreds had been hurt in an anti-war demonstration in Budapest. A committee of the Social Democrat party of Germany had declared: "World war threatens! The ruling classes, who gag, despise and exploit you in time of peace, now want to turn you into cannon fodder. Let the ears of the tyrants everywhere hear our shout: 'We will have no war.' International fraternalisation for ever!" The Socialist parties of the other countries had echoed the warning.

But now a million men lay dead or maimed, and the war was only beginning. The protests had been chocked off. Mass murder was being practiced on a scale unparalleled in all history. It was being accepted by the people. Ironically an individual murder was still capable of arousing indignation. The slaying of a French wife on this date roused sensational interest in Paris.

The 11th regiment of Hussars to which Capt. Edouard Herail belonged had been withdrawn from the front and sent to Campiegne for a rest period, after extremely severe

Just Folks

THOUGHTS AFTER CHANGING A TYPEWRITER RIBBON

My grandfather long was a clever mechanic.
He knew the "innards" of watches and things.
Nothing it seemed could throw him in a panic.
He was at ease among fly wheels and springs.
He could fix boilers and tea kettles leaky.
He could mend door bells and overcoat stands;
He could put oil where the hinges were squeaky.
He was a wonder, I'm told, with his hands.

Give him a hammer and wrench, and contented
He'd put a shelf where a shelf ought to be.
Many a gadget my granddad invented.
At keeping things going a wizard was he!
Great was his joy when he found something broken,
That meant a task he delighted to do.
Oft by my granddad was this sentence spoken:
"I'll have it fixed in a jiffy, for you."

Where is that skill I'm supposed to inherit?
Helpless I stand when the needs for it come.
Nothing's so simple that I can repair it!
I can't drive a nail without hitting my thumb.
Mechanics, my grandfather's talk was so glib on,
Are mysteries deep which in terror I face;
Why I can't change even a typewriter ribbon
Without making a mess of myself and the place.

Correctly Speaking—

Never divide a monosyllable.

The East Side church, the Third United Presbyterian, the Second United Presbyterian and the Epworth Methodist, are planning a union Thanksgiving service for Wednesday evening, November 28, at 7:30 in the Third United Presbyterian church.

Galbraith of Epworth church will have the evening prayer, and Dr. R. F. Galbreath, president of Westminster College, will deliver the Thanksgiving address.

The music will be by the combined choirs of the churches, under the direction of David West, with Katherine Newberry at the organ.

Central Church Mission Program

Missionary Society Will Present Thank Offering Service Sunday Morning

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Central Presbyterian church will hold their annual thank-offering service Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock. They have secured Mrs. Grant E. Fisher to deliver the missionary address.

Mrs. Fisher is a graduate of Grove City College and at an early age had the degree of doctor of philosophy conferred upon her by the same institution. One of her literary recreations is the writing of poetry. Many of her choicest poems have been published and have had a wide circulation.

After a busy lifetime as a minister's wife and dealing with young people and missionary problems, she is richly qualified to present an inspiring missionary message. Dr. Charles B. Wingerd will preside and some other missionary workers will assist in the service.

Lehman Party At First Church

McKinney Bible Class Gives Dinner In Church, Followed By Public Service

Every available seat in the First Presbyterian church auditorium and Sunday school room was filled Friday evening when the Lehman Evangelistic party of the Gospel Tabernacle, Wheeling, W. Va., conducted a service as guests of the McKinney Bible class.

The activities of the evening began with a fellowship supper given in the church dining room in honor of the party, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Lehman, Junior Lehman, Howard Hones, Charles Beebee, Harold Mustaine and Charles Washington. Places were arranged for 150 at long tables in the church dining room and the members of the McKinney Bible class served a most delicious chicken dinner.

Robert M. White, teacher of the host class, introduced L. P. Lehman, who acted as master of ceremonies for the dinner meeting and as the men were serving the plates the group was entertained by a cornet solo, "Open the Gates," by Howard Jones, followed by group singing, and the singing of "Way Over Jordan," a spiritual, by Charles Washington, a colored member of the party.

When dinner was over Mr. White presented Mr. and Mrs. Lehman with a large wedding cake, topped with 21 candles, symbolic of the 21 years of their married life, their anniversary will be Sunday, November 25.

There was an entertaining program followed with Mr. Washington giving a reading, "When Melinda Sings"; Junior Lehman, who has a pleasing tenor voice, sang, "When They Rang Those Golden Bells"; Mr. Lehman and Mr. Washington sang a duet, "Palms of Victory." Mrs. Lehman spoke briefly, thanking the group for their kindness and courtesies of the evening; this was followed by another cornet solo, "How Firm a Foundation"; a reading, highly humorous, "Apples," by Mr. Washington; a piano number, "That Will Be Glory for Me," by Harold Mustaine, after which the dinner group went to the church auditorium to take part in the public service.

A spirited song service of half an hour opened this part of the program, with congregational singing, solos, duets, trios, cornet numbers and piano numbers by the party.

Mrs. Lehman spoke shortly, after which Junior Lehman took his text from James 4:14, and preached on "What Is Your Life."

fighting in Lorraine. There he had won the cross of knight of the Legion of Honor by his bravery. Mme. Herail, who had been at Narbonne with her three children, learned of the regiment's arrival at Campiegne, and hurried there to join her husband. He was obliged to conceal her, for an order of the commanding general early in the war had forbidden the wives of officers to be with their husbands. Herail represented to her in the most affectionate manner that she was forcing him to break the orders of his superiors. She replied with indignant reproaches, declaring "There is no power in France that can make me leave my husband."

The colonel of the regiment, learning of the clandestine meetings of Herail and wife, ordered the captain before him for explanation. The officer, instead of telling of his inability to induce her to leave loyally tried to excuse his wife's conduct. Consequently he was placed under arrest and ordered to the depot at Narbonne, and his decoration was revoked.

Capt. Herail managed to get to his wife's place of concealment. He pleaded with her to leave, and when she refused to listen, he flew into a rage and ordered her to go. "I will never leave you alive. I love you too much, Jean!" she cried.

The officer of the guard detailed to Herail came up in time to hear this.

"Then you will leave me dead," the officer responded, pulling his revolver and firing three bullets into her head.

He was tried by court-martial in Paris, amid intense excitement. Henri Robert, the most noted member of the Paris bar, defended him. "A judge far more inexorable than any of you," said M. Robert, pointing to the trio on the bench, "his mother-in-law, has forgiven him. She lauds him as an ideal man and officer and worthy of his country."

M. Herail was found not guilty.

Lehman Party At First Church

McKinney Bible Class Gives Dinner In Church, Followed By Public Service

Every available seat in the First Presbyterian church auditorium and Sunday school room was filled Friday evening when the Lehman Evangelistic party of the Gospel Tabernacle, Wheeling, W. Va., conducted a service as guests of the McKinney Bible class.

The activities of the evening began with a fellowship supper given in the church dining room in honor of the party, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Lehman. Junior Lehman, Howard Hones, Charles Beebee, Harold Mustaine and Charles Washington. Places were arranged for 150 at long tables in the church dining room and the members of the McKinney Bible class served a most delicious chicken dinner.

Robert M. White, teacher of the host class, introduced L. P. Lehman, who acted as master of ceremonies for the dinner meeting and as the men were serving the plates the group was entertained by a cornet solo, "Open the Gates," by Howard Jones, followed by group singing, and the singing of "Way Over Jordan," a spiritual, by Charles Washington, a colored member of the party.

When dinner was over Mr. White presented Mr. and Mrs. Lehman with a large wedding cake, topped with 21 candles, symbolic of the 21 years of their married life, their anniversary will be Sunday, November 25.

There was an entertaining program followed with Mr. Washington giving a reading, "When Melinda Sings"; Junior Lehman, who has a pleasing tenor voice, sang, "When They Ring Those Golden Bells"; Mr. Lehman and Mr. Washington sang a duet, "Palms of Victory." Mrs. Lehman spoke briefly, thanking the group for their kindness and courtesies of the evening; this was followed by another cornet solo, "How Firm a Foundation"; a reading, highly humorous, "Apples," by Mr. Washington; a piano number, "That Will Be Glory for Me," by Harold Mustaine, after which the dinner group went to the church auditorium to take part in the public service.

A spirited song service of half an hour opened this part of the program, with congregational singing, solos, duets, trios, cornet numbers and piano numbers by the party.

Mrs. Lehman spoke shortly, after which Junior Lehman took his text from Janes 4:14, and preached on "What Is Your Life."

fighting in Lorraine. There he had won the cross of knight of the Legion of Honor by his bravery. Mme. Herail, who had been at Narbonne with her three children, learned of the regiment's arrival at Campiegne, and hurried there to join her husband. He was obliged to conceal her, for an order of the commanding general early in the war had forbidden the wives of officers to be with their husbands. Herail represented to her in the most affectionate manner that she was forcing him to break the orders of his superiors. She replied with indignant reproaches, declaring "There is no power in France that can make me leave my husband."

The colonel of the regiment, learning of the clandestine meetings of Herail and wife, ordered the captain before him for explanation. The officer, instead of telling of his inability to induce her to leave loyally tried to excuse his wife's conduct. Consequently he was placed under arrest and ordered to the depot at Narbonne, and his decoration was revoked.

Capt. Herail managed to get to his wife's place of concealment. He pleaded with her to leave, and when she refused to listen, he flew into a rage and ordered her to go. "I will never leave you alive. I love you too much, Jean!" she cried.

The officer of the guard detailed to Herail came up in time to hear this.

"Then you will leave me dead," the officer responded, pulling his revolver and firing three bullets into her head.

He was tried by court-martial in Paris, amid intense excitement. Henri Robert, the most noted member of the Paris bar, defended him. "A judge far more inexorable than any of you," said M. Robert, pointing to the trio on the bench, "his mother-in-law, has forgiven him. She lauds him as an ideal man and officer and worthy of his country."

M. Herail was found not guilty.

Lehman Party At First Church

McKinney Bible Class Gives Dinner In Church, Followed By Public Service

Every available seat in the First Presbyterian church auditorium and Sunday school room was filled Friday evening when the Lehman Evangelistic party of the Gospel Tabernacle, Wheeling, W. Va., conducted a service as guests of the McKinney Bible class.

The activities of the evening began with a fellowship supper given in the church dining room in honor of the party, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Lehman, Junior Lehman, Howard Hones, Charles Beebee, Harold Mustaine and Charles Washington. Places were arranged for 150 at long tables in the church dining room and the members of the McKinney Bible class served a most delicious chicken dinner.

Robert M. White, teacher of the host class, introduced L. P. Lehman, who acted as master of ceremonies for the dinner meeting and as the men were serving the plates the group was entertained by a cornet solo, "Open the Gates," by Howard Jones, followed by group singing, and the singing of "Way Over Jordan," a spiritual, by Charles Washington, a colored member of the party.

When dinner was over Mr. White presented Mr. and Mrs. Lehman with a large wedding cake, topped with 21 candles, symbolic of the 21 years of their married life, their anniversary will be Sunday, November 25.

There was an entertaining program followed with Mr. Washington giving a reading, "When Melinda Sings"; Junior Lehman, who has a pleasing tenor voice, sang, "When They Ring Those Golden Bells"; Mr. Lehman and Mr. Washington sang a duet, "Palms of Victory." Mrs. Lehman spoke briefly, thanking the group for their kindness and courtesies of the evening; this was followed by another cornet solo, "How Firm a Foundation"; a reading, highly humorous, "Apples," by Mr. Washington; a piano number, "That Will Be Glory for Me," by Harold Mustaine, after which the dinner group went to the church auditorium to take part in the public service.

A spirited song service of half an hour opened this part of the program, with congregational singing, solos, duets, trios, cornet numbers and piano numbers by the party.

Mrs. Lehman spoke shortly, after which Junior Lehman took his text from James 4:14, and preached on "What Is Your Life."

fighting in Lorraine. There he had won the cross of knight of the Legion of Honor by his bravery. Mme. Herail, who had been at Narbonne with her three children, learned of the regiment's arrival at Campiegne, and hurried there to join her husband. He was obliged to conceal her, for an order of the commanding general early in the war had forbidden the wives of officers to be with their husbands. Herail represented to her in the most affectionate manner that she was forcing him to break the orders of his superiors. She replied with indignant reproaches, declaring "There is no power in France that can make me leave my husband."

The colonel of the regiment, learning of the clandestine meetings of Herail and wife, ordered the captain before him for explanation. The officer, instead of telling of his inability to induce her to leave loyally tried to excuse his wife's conduct. Consequently he was placed under arrest and ordered to the depot at Narbonne, and his decoration was revoked.

Capt. Herail managed to get to his wife's place of concealment. He pleaded with her to leave, and when she refused to listen, he flew into a rage and ordered her to go. "I will never leave you alive. I love you too much, Jean!" she cried.

The officer of the guard detailed to Herail came up in time to hear this.

"Then you will leave me dead," the officer responded, pulling his revolver and firing three bullets into her head.

He was tried by court-martial in Paris, amid intense excitement. Henri Robert, the most noted member of the Paris bar, defended him. "A judge far more inexorable than any of you," said M. Robert, pointing to the trio on the bench, "his mother-in-law, has forgiven him. She lauds him as an ideal man and officer and worthy of his country."

M. Herail was found not guilty.

Fathers And Sons Banquet Friday At Local Church

Novel Idea Carried Out At Successful Annual Event At Presbyterian Church

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 24.—With marked impressiveness, fine fellowship and unusual program, the fathers and sons of the First Presbyterian church held their annual banquet Friday evening in the church dining room.

This was the most successful event of the type held here in years. Over 150 participated in the occasion. The feature of the evening was the novel manner in which the program was carried out.

All assembled in the church auditorium, where they were lined up in their respective places and then marched down to the dining room. They were required to walk across a bridge, where they were greeted by George Washington, who was the honor guest on the occasion. The dining room was decorated in national colors and the tables had beautiful flowers and lighted tapers.

While the dinner was being served by the Laura M. Smith and Women's Missionary Societies of the church, pep singing was enjoyed by the assemblage, under the direction of Robert Stevenson and Chester Wilson. At dinner grace was given by James Gaskell, Jr.

The theme of the occasion was the "Bridge Builders", notable persons of history, and of their accomplishments and service to the country. Burgess Judd C. Turner, chairman of the banquet, introduced Atty J. W. Humphrey, toastmaster of the evening, who in turn introduced Washington as the principal speaker of the evening. In reality he was Walter P. Brown of Pittsburgh, whose subject was "Bridges I Have Built". Response by the bridge builders of the future was given by Joseph P. Wilson.

An organization meeting to carry out this theme was then conducted by Mr. Humphrey. It resulted as follows: president, Joseph S. Bowater; vice president, W. H. Goehring; secretary, Robert Stevenson; treasurer, Fred Smith. Rev. A. M. Stevenson, the pastor, will be of the executive committee. This plan of bridge builders will be carried out in future events of this type. The affair closed with the benediction by Rev. Stevenson.

In filing out the assemblage again crossed the bridge, but this time were greeted by the future bridge builder, in the person of Joe Wilson.

STOCKS

Market Today Turns Strong

Quiet Strength Is Displayed In Stock Market, Many Issues Hit New Highs

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Quiet strength marked the stock market today with many issues hitting new highes on the advance in moderately active dealings.

Bullish sentiment was stimulated by the ability of the industrials to penetrate the June highs on the averages in yesterday's session. Traders held back from doing any large-scale buying, however, until the rails came along to join the advance.

Steels were a strong group with U. S. Steel and Bethlehem selling at the best levels in months, heavy buying of scrap by the mills in the last few days was a factor.

Liquors also continued in demand, with National Distillers selling at a new high price on the advance. Commercial Solvents was strong and active.

Rails were somewhat better but gains were fractional as traders waited for some indication of an upturn in traffic.

Utilities benefited from recent indications that the group had been oversold. Consolidated Gas was in demand at rising prices.

Farm stocks were quiet and ruled around the previous close. Rail equipments were steady with Pullman working higher. Rubber shares were moderately active. DuPont went to a new high on the move in the industrials.

Grains were strong in commodities. The dollar was strong and bonds better.

They were required to walk across a bridge, where they were greeted by George Washington, who was the honor guest on the occasion. The dining room was decorated in national colors and the tables had beautiful flowers and lighted tapers.

While the dinner was being served by the Laura M. Smith and Women's Missionary Societies of the church, pep singing was enjoyed by the assemblage, under the direction of Robert Stevenson and Chester Wilson. At dinner grace was given by James Gaskell, Jr.

The theme of the occasion was the "Bridge Builders", notable persons of history, and of their accomplishments and service to the country. Burgess Judd C. Turner, chairman of the banquet, introduced Atty J. W. Humphrey, toastmaster of the evening, who in turn introduced Washington as the principal speaker of the evening. In reality he was Walter P. Brown of Pittsburgh, whose subject was "Bridges I Have Built". Response by the bridge builders of the future was given by Joseph P. Wilson.

Goehring; secretary, Robert Stevenson; treasurer, Fred Smith. Rev. A. M. Stevenson, the pastor, will be of the executive committee. This plan of bridge builders will be carried out in future events of this type. The affair closed with the benediction by Rev. Stevenson.

Market Today Turns Strong

Quiet Strength Is Displayed In Stock Market, Many Issues Hit New Highs

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Quiet strength marked the stock market today with many issues hitting new highes on the advance in moderately active dealings.

Bullish sentiment was stimulated by the ability of the industrials to penetrate the June highs on the averages in yesterday's session. Traders held back from doing any large-scale buying, however, until the rails came along to join the advance.

Steels were a strong group with U. S. Steel and Bethlehem selling at the best levels in months, heavy buying of scrap by the mills in the last few days was a factor.

Liquors also continued in demand, with National Distillers selling at a new high price on the advance. Commercial Solvents was strong and active.

Rails were somewhat better but gains were fractional as traders waited for some indication of an upturn in traffic.

Utilities benefited from recent indications that the group had been oversold. Consolidated Gas was in demand at rising prices.

Farm stocks were quiet and ruled around the previous close. Rail equipments were steady with Pullman working higher. Rubber shares were moderately active. DuPont went to a new high on the move in the industrials.

Grains were strong in commodities. The dollar was strong and bonds better.

They were required to walk across a bridge, where they were greeted by George Washington, who was the honor guest on the occasion. The dining room was decorated in national colors and the tables had beautiful flowers and lighted tapers.

While the dinner was being served by the Laura M. Smith and Women's Missionary Societies of the church, pep singing was enjoyed by the assemblage, under the direction of Robert Stevenson and Chester Wilson. At dinner grace was given by James Gaskell, Jr.

The theme of the occasion was the "Bridge Builders", notable persons of history, and of their accomplishments and service to the country. Burgess Judd C. Turner, chairman of the banquet, introduced Atty J. W. Humphrey, toastmaster of the evening, who in turn introduced Washington as the principal speaker of the evening. In reality he was Walter P. Brown of Pittsburgh, whose subject was "Bridges I Have Built". Response by the bridge builders of the future was given by Joseph P. Wilson.

Goehring; secretary, Robert Stevenson; treasurer, Fred Smith. Rev. A. M. Stevenson, the pastor, will be of the executive committee. Market Today Turns Strong

Quiet Strength Is Displayed In Stock Market, Many Issues Hit New Highs

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Quiet strength marked the stock market today with many issues hitting new highs on the advance in moderately active dealings.

Bullish sentiment was stimulated by the ability of the industrials to penetrate the June highs on the averages in yesterday's session. Traders held back from doing any large-scale buying, however, until the rails came along to join the advance.

Steels were a strong group with U. S. Steel and Bethlehem selling at the best levels in months, heavy buying of scrap by the mills in the last few days was a factor.

Liquors also continued in demand, with National Distillers selling at a new high price on the advance. Commercial Solvents was strong and active.

Rails were somewhat better but gains were fractional as traders waited for some indication of an upturn in traffic.

Utilities benefited from recent indications that the group had been oversold. Consolidated Gas was in demand at rising prices.

Farm stocks were quiet and ruled around the previous close. Rail equipments were steady with Pullman working higher. Rubber shares were moderately active. DuPont went to a new high on the move in the industrials.

Grains were strong in commodities. The dollar was strong and bonds better.

Editor Speaks To Valley Engineers

Magazine Chief Heard At Dinner Of Mahoning-Shenango Group

PITTSBURGH MAN TALKS ON SAFETY

Managing Editor G. F. Nordenholt of "Product Engineering," nationally known engineering magazine, told the Mahoning-Shenango Valley Engineers' society at The Castleton last night that the "obsoleting" of products now in use is what will bring on "another era of good business."

"Engineers today," the speaker declared before the engineers and plant representatives from the New Castle and surrounding districts, "are designing today new things which, once production gets under way, will be wanted by everybody."

"On the Market at Profit Prices" was Editor Nordenholt's subject.

Illustrating his message with slides which surveyed the results of engineering activity of the past few years, Mr. Nordenholt, a New Yorker, devoted most of his time to a discussion of the philosophies which have been adopted—and mostly unconsciously—in the engineering departments of the nation's progressive companies.

In non-technical language, he declared the three outstanding philosophies to be these:

First: Engineers have brought about the elimination of the word "T" from can't.

Second: In former years when engineers designed a part, it was designed to perform one given service. Now they design them for a "multiplicity of services."

Three: Engineers have eliminated unnecessary connecting members from machines they design.

A bright future for the engineering industry was painted in the address which the speaker gave.

Presiding during the evening was Carl Leis, Johnson Bronze company executive and president of the society.

Nominations Made

Reporting in the business session of the evening, the society's special nominating committee, headed by W. Keith McAfee, head of the Universal Sanitary Manufacturing company, offered the following slate of 1935 officers for the consideration of members before the election in December:

For president, Carl Leis; vice president, J. L. Matthews, New Castle Water company superintendent; treasurer, John Boyles, Shenango Pottery company; secretary, Thomas L. Paden, Pennsylvania Power company, and members-at-large of the society council, Charles Adams and W. P. Lehrman.

While the society dined last night a group of senior high musicians played. They were brought to the meeting by E. L. Cramer, newly appointed school board member and society member, who extolled the players and senior high's musical rating, in a short speech during the dinner. Dorothy Fisher, talented pianist, was personally introduced.

D. D. Gough, Pittsburgh, scored "drunken driving" in a brief talk before Mr. Nordenholt spoke. He spoke in the interest of Everybody's Safety Drive, now closing.

For the speaker at the society's next meeting, W. Keith McAfee announced last night, Ross C. Purdy, of Columbus, general secretary of the American Ceramic society, has been secured.

Numerous guests attended last night's dinner with the local engineers.

The program arrangements were in charge of Ed. L. Davenport of the Johnson Bronze company, chairman of the society's entertainment committee.

HEARING HELD IN AUTO THEFTS

Alderman Frees One, Holds Three; Another Waives Case To Court

One of five youths charged by Chief of Police John F. Haven with participation in auto thefts here during the last few weeks won a discharge when hearings were held before Alderman Wallace J. Ewing.

Joseph Rubino, Pollock avenue, was absolved of all blame when the alderman discharged him.

Three of the young men, George Haas, South Mercer street; Joseph Cople, East Home street, and Joseph Fullwood, Pollock avenue, were bound over to the December court, while the fourth, William Brachetti, Phillips street, waived his hearing.

Haas, Cople and Brachetti face the combined charges of larceny of automobiles, driving cars without the owners' consent and malicious mischief. Fullwood, the only one to plead "guilty" before the alderman, faces only the first two charges, as the malicious mischief charge was not lodged against him.

All of the four, with the exception of Cople, provided bail of $500 and were released. Cople is in the county jail.

NO CARDS, HE GETS JAIL

Because he failed to show either an operator's or owner's registration card for a truck he was driving near the city-Shenango township line yesterday, Joseph Rogers, Negro, was arraigned by Constable W. R. Waddington, Shenango township, before Alderman Wallace J. Ewing.

He was sent to the county jail for five days after being given several hours to produce the cards.

Hope For The Old.
Your Brain Glows.
$125,000? Too Little.
Gold, A Mighty Power.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S encouraging message to mayors of many cities gathered in Chicago assures them that substantial results have been achieved "along the road of economic recovery." Most important and encouraging, the President's message says that Congress will "give further attention to old age pensions."

Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, was chosen to read the President's message.

IT IS good news that our government, following the example of civilized governments in other countries, will assume responsibility for poverty-stricken old age.

A "civilization" in which it is considered disgraceful to turn an old horse out to die should be ashamed to say to an old man or woman:

"We have got out of you all your useful work, now starve."

DR. CRILE, Cleveland scientific wizard, working in "pitch-black darkness of an underground laboratory," shows that brains of animals, including man, "grow by their own inner light, giving off a strange radiance, that casts a mystic halo."

Dr. Crile puts it scientifically:

"The sun shines again in the protoplasm of animals."

Can it be that luminosity of the brain, highly developed, first caused haloes to be painted around the heads of saints and other holy ones? Some religious "light" may have enabled pre-Raphaelite artists to see what Dr. Crile now sees by the light of science.

BRITISH taxpayers will pay the Duke of Kent, $125,000 a year after he marries Princess Marina, and Labor members in the House of Commons howl, long, loud and bitterly. The prince's pay is raised from $75,000 a year, and Maxton, M. P., asks why unemployed married couples on the dole can't be paid as much.

For his information, it may be stated that if the Duke of Kent and his wife will come here and work as hard, in the line of salesmanship, as the British royal family works at home, a dozen American firms will gladly pay them $125,000 a year, and twice that.

MIGHTY IS the power of gold. Ships from Russia bring cargoes of gold ore to Tacoma, in the state of Washington, where the ore is put through a special process.

With the refined gold, Russia builds up a cash reserve of American money for American purchases.

While expounding, and praising theories of Lenin and Karl Marx, practical Mr. Stalin does not neglect "capitalistic gold." Already, Russia produces $150,000,000 gold a year, three times as much as the total gold production of the United States. You could hardly exaggerate the influence of $150,000,000,000 gold a year on America's "best minds."

If Stalin raises Russian gold production, as he may do, to one thousand millions a year, and spends half of it here, those that came to jeer will stay to praise.

WHEN UNCLE SAM goes to market, buying for hungry nephews and nieces, he "goes wholesale." In New York State alone, the federal emergency relief has bought twelve cabbages to fill twelve trainloads of one hundred cars each. Uncle Sam bought generously, and raised the price from $2.50 and $3.50 a ton to more than $5.

Twenty-four million pounds of cabbages will be handed free to the needy.

ANCIENT Hebrews said:

"The blood is the life."

Modern science says sunlight is the life of the blood, which in turn distributed life throughout the body. Actinic rays create health-giving vitamins in the blood. Old age, especially, is benefitted by winter sunshine.

Word comes from Florida that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., nearing 100 years of age, and spending his winter in the Florida sunlight, is enjoying health greatly improved.

Diesel-engined airplanes carrying passengers across the continent, or from North to South, profitably, at ten dollars a trip, will enable millions of children to grow stronger, and millions of old men and women to live longer in winter sunshine.

PRIVATE OWNERS of public monopolies and necessities are horrified, as is natural by the President's speech promising cheap power but they should meditate on his statement to one southern city.

"Since you started using TVA power last March, your consumption for residential purposes has risen from 41,000 kilowatts to 89,0004 kilowatts an increase of 126 per cent."

Twice as great consumption with half as much profit might prove safer, more permanent, than the present arrangement, and just as profitable. New York's elevated railroad never made "real money" until the fare was cut from ten to five cents. Then the crowd rode.

(Copyright, 1934, by King Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all Other Rights Reserved.)

The so-called Chartist movement, an English Democratic agitation, took place in the years between 1838 and 1850. In the year 1848 an attempt was made to organize a revolutionary force of 100,000 armed men to march on the House of Commons and only the enrollment of 150,000 London householders as special constables coupled with a torrential downpour of rain on the appointed day brought the whole affair to a fiasco.

While employment in practically all lines in Italy is increasing that among office workers continues to grow.

Hope For The Old.

Your Brain Glows.

$125,000? Too Little.

Gold, A Mighty Power.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S encouraging message to mayors of many cities gathered in Chicago assures them that substantial results have been achieved "along the road of economic recovery." Most important and encouraging, the President's message says that Congress will "give further attention to old age pensions."

Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, was chosen to read the President's message.

IT IS good news that our government, following the example of civilized governments in other countries, will assume responsibility for poverty-stricken old age.

A "civilization" in which it is considered disgraceful to turn an old horse out to die should be ashamed to say to an old man or woman:

"We have got out of you all your useful work, now starve."

DR. CRILE, Cleveland scientific wizard, working in "pitch-black darkness of an underground laboratory," shows that brains of animals, including man, "grow by their own inner light, giving off a strange radiance, that casts a mystic halo."

Dr. Crile puts it scientifically:

"The sun shines again in the protoplasm of animals."

Can it be that luminosity of the brain, highly developed, first caused haloes to be painted around the heads of saints and other holy ones? Some religious "light" may have enabled pre-Raphaelite artists to see what Dr. Crile now sees by the light of science.

BRITISH taxpayers will pay the Duke of Kent, $125,000 a year after he marries Princess Marina, and Labor members in the House of Commons howl, long, loud and bitterly. The prince's pay is raised from $75,000 a year, and Maxton, M. P., asks why unemployed married couples on the dole can't be paid as much.

For his information, it may be stated that if the Duke of Kent and his wife will come here and work as hard, in the line of salesmanship, as the British royal family works at home, a dozen American firms will gladly pay them $125,000 a year, and twice that.

MIGHTY IS the power of gold. Ships from Russia bring cargoes of gold ore to Tacoma, in the state of Washington, where the ore is put through a special process.

With the refined gold, Russia builds up a cash reserve of American money for American purchases.

While expounding, and praising theories of Lenin and Karl Marx, practical Mr. Stalin does not neglect "capitalistic gold." Already, Russia produces $150,000,000 gold a year, three times as much as the total gold production of the United States. You could hardly exaggerate the influence of $150,000,000,000 gold a year on America's "best minds."

If Stalin raises Russian gold production, as he may do, to one thousand millions a year, and spends half of it here, those that came to jeer will stay to praise.

WHEN UNCLE SAM goes to market, buying for hungry nephews and nieces, he "goes wholesale." In New York State alone, the federal emergency relief has bought twelve cabbages to fill twelve trainloads of one hundred cars each. Uncle Sam bought generously, and raised the price from $2.50 and $3.50 a ton to more than $5.

Twenty-four million pounds of cabbages will be handed free to the needy.

ANCIENT Hebrews said:

"The blood is the life."

Modern science says sunlight is the life of the blood, which in turn distributed life throughout the body. Actinic rays create health-giving vitamins in the blood. Old age, especially, is benefitted by winter sunshine.

Word comes from Florida that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., nearing 100 years of age, and spending his winter in the Florida sunlight, is enjoying health greatly improved.

Diesel-engined airplanes carrying passengers across the continent, or from North to South, profitably, at ten dollars a trip, will enable millions of children to grow stronger, and millions of old men and women to live longer in winter sunshine.

PRIVATE OWNERS of public monopolies and necessities are horrified, as is natural by the President's speech promising cheap power but they should meditate on his statement to one southern city.

"Since you started using TVA power last March, your consumption for residential purposes has risen from 41,000 kilowatts to 89,0004 kilowatts an increase of 126 per cent."

Twice as great consumption with half as much profit might prove safer, more permanent, than the present arrangement, and just as profitable. New York's elevated railroad never made "real money" until the fare was cut from ten to five cents. Then the crowd rode.

The so-called Chartist movement, an English Democratic agitation, took place in the years between 1838 and 1850. In the year 1848 an attempt was made to organize a revolutionary force of 100,000 armed men to march on the House of Commons and only the enrollment of 150,000 London householders as special constables coupled with a torrential downpour of rain on the appointed day brought the whole affair to a fiasco.

While employment in practically all lines in Italy is increasing that among office workers continues to grow.

Hamas And Baer May Be Matched For Chicago Ring

Former Penn State Star May Get Chance At Championship In Bout Next Spring

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Max Baer's fistic course for 1935 showed signs of taking form today in conferences scheduled in connection with the visit here of the heavyweight champion.

The chances that Chicago might win a heavyweight title show mounted with a statement today by Ancil Hoffman, the champion's manager, that he prefers to have Baer make his first defense of the title here next summer.

Jack Dempsey, it was understood, is to be a promotional principal. Hoffman stated that Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis, both of Chicago, may figure as co-promoters if a fight is closed for Soldier Field on the lake front.

Baer's opponent, the pilot said, can be selected from whatever contenders manage to forge to the front between then and now. Hoffman named Steve Hamas as the top challenger at present, Art Lasky having slumped in the ratings with his inability to polish off the exuberant Kingfish Levinsky last night.

King Levinsky Defeats Lasky

Maxie Baer Watches Heavies Battle, Buddy Baer Wins In First By Kayo

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—King Levinsky's ribs ached today, but the pride of Chicago's Ghetto held a draw decision after ten rounds of furious milling with Art Lasky, the Minneapolis and Los Angeles candidate for the heavyweight championship crown of Max Baer.

The champion himself was on hand to see the battle and was treated to an anxious moment when his 240 pound baby brother, Buddy, whom he seconded, blasted one Frank Ketter into unconsciousness in 25 seconds, on one of the preliminaries. Ketter was out for ten minutes.

Levinsky, after losing ground badly in the middle rounds, came galloping home to earn an unexpected draw in the eighth and ninth rounds.

Crocetti To Fight Barron

New Castle Featherweight To Box First Pro Bout Next Friday

Sammy Crocetti, local featherweight, and his manager, Jimme Dime, left today for Amsterdam, N. Y., where Sammy will complete his training for a 10-round fight next Friday night at Albany. He is scheduled to box Mickey Barron of Scranton. Crocetti's home is in Amsterdam.

It will be Crocetti's first professional bout since joining Dime's stable and he hopes to make a good showing with Barron, who has beat George von der Hayden of Detroit, Joey Brown and Orville Droullard.

Shenango Loses Seven Gridders

East New Castle Eleven Captures Four Victories During 1934 Season

SHENANGO DROPS ONLY TWO GAMES

One of the strongest gridiron elevens turned out at Shenango high in the past few years, is the 1934 Blue and Gold clad pigskin catchers who recently ended the season with a 26-13 victory over Union high.

Facing one of the toughest schedules in the history of the school, the East New Castle team captured four victories, lost only two games, and tied two tilts. Shenango's program called for contests with Mars, Zelienople, Sharpsville, Slippery Rock, Mercer, Bessemer, Emlenton and Union.

In toppling Mars, 6-0, Slippery Rock by a 13-0 score, holding Mercer 7-7, and losing to Bessemer by a 12-7 count, the Shenango team displayed its strength. The Bessemer-Shenango game proved one of the best enacted on the Cement City gridiron this year. It was anybody's game until the end. It was this game that cost Shenango the Lawrence County Class B title.

The East New Castle team tallied 78 points to 77 for their apponents. Sharpsville was the only team that rode roughshod over Shenango, 39-0, at the start of the season. Hortig with five touchdowns, was the big point scorer. The loss of Harvey Ketzel, who was injured early in the season, was greatly felt.

The gridiron careers of seven of Coach Edward Raney's first stringers, ended after the Union tilt. Graduation means the loss of the following players: Harry Hortig, Eugene McConahy, Ralph Perdue, John Petro, John Zak, Harry Gierling and Jack Shaffer.

The record made by the 1934 Shenango high team follows:

Shenango 0—Zelienople 0
Shenango 0—Sharpsville 39
Shenango 13—Slippery Rock 0
Shenango 7—Mercer 7
Shenango 6—Mars 0
Shenango 7—Bessemer 12
Shenango 19—Emlenton 6
Shenango 26—Union 13
Total points—Shenango 78: Opponents 77.

Touchdowns—Hortig 6, McConahy 2, Ketzel 2, Tanner 2.

Lou Brouillard Defeats Gainer

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Lou Brouillard, the squat little man from Worcester, got hunk for any rib-cracking indignities which may have been visited upon him by Al Gainer heretofore.

The former welter and middleweight champion romped home in ten rounds in Madison Square Garden, both Leach Cross and Marty Monroe, the judges, agreeing that the French-Canadian had triumphed.

It was a stubborn battle with the little man fighting a tenaciously aggressive battle from bell to bell.

Out-punched at times, Brouillard kept going with never a let up. He took the negro's hardest shots without batting an eye, and he won because he never dreamed of saying die.

Leonine verses was the name given to the hexameter and pentameter verses, common in the Middle Ages, which rhymed at the middle and end.

Seven New Co-eds Will Be Initiated

To Be Admitted To Westminster Women's Athletic Association On Monday

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Nov. 24.—Seven new co-ed members, outstanding in field hockey and soccer, will be initiated into the Women's Athletic Association at Westminster college on Monday evening, Miss Nandeen Love, director of athletics for women, announces.

The women students to be honored include: Margaret Bakken, Edgewood; Betty Oster, Homestead; Jane Byers, New Wilmington; Betty Barrett, Bellevue; Noreen Bontrager, Cleveland, O.; Mildred Kerr, Centerville; Sally Hamilton, Smith's Ferry, and Evelyn Hoagland, New Wilmington.

Initiation will be held in the W. A. A. clubroom in Hillside. Patricia Jones, New Wilmington, will preside, and Virgil Wettich, New Castle, hockey chairman, and Virginia Booth, Cleveland Heights, O., soccer chairman, will present letters to the new members. Guests at the initiation will include Dean Mary E. Turner, Mrs. Elizabeth Beam and Miss Nandeen Love.

W. A. A. now has 44 members, all of whom participate in at least two sports each year and are outstanding in at least one sport. The organization presented a new water fountain to be placed in the women's locker room of the gym last week. Last year the organization donated health scales for the locker room.

POOR DECISIONS IN BOXING

Occasionally we learn that the boxing commissions have become "alarmed" over the sour decisions and poor jobs turned in by the judges and referees assigned to some of the more important fights. They usually remain "alarmed" long enough to hold a meeting and investigation, and then, after a flowery statement or change in a few of the rules, they sit back until another "boner" on the part of the judges or referees causes them to become "alarmed".

However, "false alarms" are the extent of the commissions periodical arousings so far. The judges are still dealing the cards left-handed and the referees are handling the fights like a southpaw cuts a piece of beefsteak.

The Maxie Rosenbloom-Bob Olin fight card is the latest event to arouse the ire of the New York Boxing commission. Now, since the show was billed as a World's Championship affair it called for the best and most experienced officials that New York could offer.

The officials proved to be exactly that. By awarding the decisions to the losers in the main attraction and in the Sammy Fuller-Young Peter Jackson semi-final they proved themselves to be the best and most experienced in judging as it has been done in the past number of years.

They say experience makes for consistency and the judges certainly demonstrated they were among the best in that line by giving the loser the decision twice in the same evening without faltering. They may have been reading a few Detective magazines while the fights were in progress: they couldn't have been watching the ring and still award the decisions to Olin and Jackson.

What boxing needs is a little of the "over-emphasis" football is supposed to have. The fight game needs centralized supervision by persons who really know the sport from A to Z and who have a whole hearted interest in its advancement.

Right now, it is unnecessary to go into detail on whether or not those in charge know all they should about about boxing or are as interested in the game as they should be because there is no centralized supervision.

With various commissions regulating as they see fit, the country can't even establish national champions, let alone cooperate with Europe, Canada and other places on worlds champions. What respect should the foreign commission be expected to have for American championship claims when the national rulers can't appoint efficient officials or even get together on a champion in each of the various classes.

There is no reason why boxing cannot be established firmly with definite rules and capable officials, referees and judges in charge. Baseball never has any major problems regarding its umpires; the football referees, on the whole, do their job quite satisfactorily; and basketball, a comparatively new sport, is far ahead of boxing as far as officiating is concerned.

If the fight game is to again become one of the most popular American sports it shall have to undergo a thorough house-cleaning. With the flabby, loose supervision, and inefficient officiating now prevalent the fistic game will soon be nothing but a burlesque just as wrestling, another old-time sport of high esteem that has been degraded.

Fights could be handled as efficiently and capably as baseball, football or basketball but it takes careful selection of officials who have had proper training. And to get this there must be an organization at the helm with proper authority and knowledge of the game.

AUDIA IN CALIFORNIA

Word has been received by Fred Marcella of South Mill street, of the arrival at Los Angeles, Cal., of Joseph "Flash" Audia, well known South Side sportsman. Mr. Audia left New Castle several weeks ago and took a steamer cruise from New York to Cuba, through the Panama Canal and up the California coast. He will be back in New Castle in January. New Castle Has Chance For Title

Must Defeat Turtle Creek High At Taggart Stadium Next Thursday

With a chance for the Class AA championship as the prize, the New Castle High School "Red Hurricane" football team will "shoot the works" against the strong Turtle Creek High here next Thursday afternoon in the "Turkey Day" battle. The game will start at 2:15 o'clock.

Coach Phil H. Brideaugh has been giving the New Castle team a lot of extra-heavy work this week. The locals have lacked a scoring punch in the last three games, making but one touchdown.

New Castle will have to be up on top to take the measure of the scrappy little Turtle Creek High team coached by Ben Haddy, former Westminster star backfield man.

New Castle will play New Kensington High for the Class AA toga at a place to be selected later providing they trim Turtle Creek, but at the moment this looks like a tough assignment.

Leo Diegel Wins From Denny Shute

(International News Service)

MELBOURNE, Nov. 24.—Leo Diegel won the Melbourne Centenary Professional golf tournament today, defeating Denny Shute in an all-American final, two up and one to go.

The Americans waged an even battle around the 36-hole course, followed by a large gallery.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Next Friday night at Albany, N. Y., Sammy Crocetti, a Jimmie Dime featherweight, will realize one of his ambitions—professional pugilism. For two years he has been training under Dime's instructions, and during that time has fought in some amateur scraps. He will find the professional ranks hard to wade through and whether he goes to the top where the golden rainbow is located or falls along the gruelling road remains to be seen.

Officials of the Lawrence County Baseball league were pleased to receive word that the Italian Athletic association would return to baseball next spring. The I. A. A., up to several years ago, had their own team and always put a strong aggregation in the field. They propose to have Centennial field put in condition and with prospects of fast opposition and good crowds, the team should be able to do well financially.

A. A. Stagg and Andy Kerr, grid coaches, believe football is going to be opened up and that changes will be brought about so there will be more forward and lateral passes, five downs to make 10 yards, lowering of the cross bar on the goal field, restoration of the "onside kick" and use of a twelfth man who would serve merely as a signal caller or "brain truster" of the gridiron. Line plunging power plays will be a thing of the past if these changes are brought about.

Ah, here's something of a sport that once was returning to the fore—weight lifting. The Amateur Athletic union of this district will hold a divisional championship meet at Pittsburgh, December 15. There will be weight lifting for all classes. Some years ago the city had a weight lifter, namely, Joe George. He is a tin worker here now. Alec Thomas, formerly of this city and now of Youngstown, was another. Not so long ago a troupe showed in Ohio and among the stunts was a weight lifting contest.

Although he has turned 65 and his hair is streaked with grey, Bill Andrews is not through with baseball. While it is true he does not actively participate in games any more, he is keenly interested in the national sport. Several nights ago he said he has played baseball since he wore knee breeches and played on regular teams when he was 12, which gives Andrews about 53 years in baseball. Bill also was affiliated with the Barry Boys, who featured here about 20 years ago.

Johnny Banko, former lightweight of this city, is at West Pittsburg and if pugilistic conditions ever pick up Bob Latera plans to start Johnny back into training. . . . Not so long ago two of the boys who fought a thrilling battle at the bowl met on a football team and punches flew. They were Homer Gray and Merle Gibson. . . . Frank Summers will be the guiding hand behind the team that will play at Centennial field next summer. . . . It won't be long now until the Church Basketball league gets under way with several games weekly.

Children should be particularly protected against the infectious diseases and exposure which may lead to "rheumatic heart."

Hamas And Baer May Be Matched For Chicago Ring

Former Penn State Star May Get Chance At Championship In Bout Next Spring

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Max Baer's fistic course for 1935 showed signs of taking form today in conferences scheduled in connection with the visit here of the heavyweight champion.

The chances that Chicago might win a heavyweight title show mounted with a statement today by Ancil Hoffman, the champion's manager, that he prefers to have Baer make his first defense of the title here next summer.

Jack Dempsey, it was understood, is to be a promotional principal. Hoffman stated that Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis, both of Chicago, may figure as co-promoters if a fight is closed for Soldier Field on the lake front.

Baer's opponent, the pilot said, can be selected from whatever contenders managers to forge to the front between then and now. Hoffman named Steve Hamas as the top challenger at present, Art Lasky having slumped in the ratings with his inability to polish off the exuberant Kingfish Levinsky last night.

Maxie Baer Watches Heavies Battle, Buddy Baer Wins In First By Kayo

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—King Levinsky's ribs ached today, but the pride of Chicago's Ghetto held a draw decision after ten rounds of furious milling with Art Lasky, the Minneapolis and Los Angeles candidate for the heavyweight championship crown of Max Baer.

The champion himself was on hand to see the battle and was treated to an anxious moment when his 240 pound baby brother, Buddy, whom he seconded, blasted one Frank Ketter into unconsciousness in 25 seconds, on one of the preliminaries. Ketter was out for ten minutes.

Levinsky, after losing ground badly in the middle rounds, came galloping home to earn an unexpected draw in the eighth and ninth rounds.

Shenango Loses Seven Gridders

East New Castle Eleven Captures Four Victories During 1934 Season

SHENANGO DROPS ONLY TWO GAMES

One of the strongest gridiron elevens turned out at Shenango high in the past few years, is the 1934 Blue and Gold clad pigskin catchers who recently ended the season with a 26-13 victory over Union high.

Facing one of the toughest schedules in the history of the school, the East New Castle team captured four victories, lost only two games, and tied two tilts. Shenango's program called for contests with Mars, Zelienople, Sharpsville, Slippery Rock, Mercer, Bessemer, Emlenton and Union.

In toppling Mars, 6-0, Slippery Rock by a 13-0 score, holding Mercer 7-7, and losing to Bessemer by a 12-7 count, the Shenango team displayed its strength. The Bessemer-Shenango game proved one of the best enacted on the Cement City gridiron this year. It was anybody's game until the end. It was this game that cost Shenango the Lawrence County Class B title.

The East New Castle team tallied 78 points to 77 for their opponents. Sharpsville was the only team that rode roughshod over Shenango, 39-0, at the start of the season. Hortig with five touchdowns, was the big point scorer. The loss of Harvey Ketzel, who was injured early in the season, was greatly felt.

The gridiron careers of seven of Coach Edward Raney's first stringers, ended after the Union tilt. Graduation means the loss of the following players: Harry Hortig, Eugene McConahy, Ralph Perdue, John Petro, John Zak, Harry Gierling and Jack Shaffer.

The record made by the 1934 Shenango high team follows:

Shenango 0—Zelienople 0
Shenango 0—Sharpsville 39
Shenango 13—Slippery Rock 0
Shenango 7—Mercer 7
Shenango 6—Mars 0
Shenango 7—Bessemer 12
Shenango 19—Emlenton 6
Shenango 26—Union 13
Total points—Shenango 78: Opponents 77.
Touchdowns—Hortig 6, McConahy 2, Ketzel 2, Tanner 2.

Lou Brouillard Defeats Gainer

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Lou Brouillard, the squat little man from Worcester, got hunk for any rib-cracking indignities which may have been visited upon him by Al Gainer heretofore.

The former welter and middleweight champion romped home in ten rounds in Madison Square Garden, both Leach Cross and Marty Monroe, the judges, agreeing that the French-Canadian had triumphed.

It was a stubborn battle with the little man fighting a tenaciously aggressive battle from bell to bell.

Out-punched at times, Brouillard kept going with never a let up. He took the negro's hardest shots without batting an eye, and he won because he never dreamed of saying die.

Leonine verses was the name given to the hexameter and pentameter verses, common in the Middle Ages, which rhymed at the middle and end.

POOR DECISIONS IN BOXING

Occasionally we learn that the boxing commissions have become "alarmed" over the sour decisions and poor jobs turned in by the judges and referees assigned to some of the more important fights. They usually remain "alarmed" long enough to hold a meeting and investigation, and then, after a flowery statement or change in a few of the rules, they sit back until another "boner" on the part of the judges or referees causes them to become "alarmed."

However, "false alarms" are the extent of the commissions periodical arousings so far. The judges are still dealing the cards left-handed and the referees are handling the fights like a southpaw cuts a piece of beefsteak.

The Maxie Rosenbloom-Bob Olin fight card is the latest event to arouse the ire of the New York Boxing commission. Now, since the show was billed as a World's Championship affair it called for the best and most experienced officials that New York could offer.

The officials proved to be exactly that. By awarding the decisions to the losers in the main attraction and in the Sammy Fuller-Young Peter Jackson semi-final they proved themselves to be the best and most experienced in judging as it has been done in the past number of years.

They say experience makes for consistency and the judges certainly demonstrated they were among the best in that line by giving the loser the decision twice in the same evening without faltering. They may have been reading a few Detective magazines while the fights were in progress; they couldn't have been watching the ring and still award the decisions to Olin and Jackson.

What boxing needs is a little of the "over-emphasis" football is supposed to have. The fight game needs centralized supervision by persons who really know the sport from A to Z and who have a whole hearted interest in its advancement.

Right now, it is unnecessary to go into detail on whether or not those in charge know all they should about about boxing or are as interested in the game as they should be because there is no centralized supervision.

With various commissions regulating as they see fit, the country can't even establish national champions, let alone cooperate with Europe, Canada and other places on worlds champions. What respect should the foreign commission be expected to have for American championship claims when the national rulers can't appoint efficient officials or even get together on a champion in each of the various classes.

There is no reason why boxing cannot be established firmly with definite rules and capable officials, referees and judges in charge. Baseball never has any major problems regarding its umpires; the football referees, on the whole, do their job quite satisfactorily; and basketball, a comparatively new sport, is far ahead of boxing as far as officiating is concerned.

If the fight game is to again become one of the most popular American sports it shall have to undergo a thorough house-cleaning. With the flabby, loose supervision, and inefficient officiating now prevalent the fistic game will soon be nothing but a burlesque just as wrestling, another old-time sport of high esteem that has been degraded.

Fights could be handled as efficiently and capably as baseball, football or basketball but it takes careful selection of officials who have had proper training. And to get this there must be an organization at the helm with proper authority and knowledge of the game.

Officers of the club include: Roberta Allen, president; Robert McGrew, secretary; Dorothy Linton, reporter.

The first program will be presented in assembly sometime next week.

ASSEMBLY IS HELD

Using a crystal as the medium for foretelling the future, Donald Hoffmaster, the other day in assembly, proved his powers in this art.

The senior class was the particularly interested audience as most of the fortune given pertained to them.

Pep talks by Coaches D. M. Boyd and Jay Rudolph, and the cheers of the school seemed to have the desired effect as Union proved by defeating Sandy Lake the following day.

On Court House Hill

The W. W. Kimball Company has issued a writ of replevin at the prothonotary's office against Port Buskirk, to secure possession of a piano.

An appeal from the decision of Alderman Mantz has been filed by the defendant in the case of the Fleming Standard Steel Company against Carl Becker in which judgment for the plaintiff was given in the sum of $108.

Jury Commissioners George J. Forrest and B. Frank Thorn yesterday filled the jury wheel for 1935, placing therein 1300 new names. There were 111 names in the wheel from last year, so that the total number is now 1411.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor reports that at one time this week there were 57 prisoners in the county jail, the largest number at any one time since Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard assumed office. Discharges during the week brought the present number down to 48. There are three women on the list. While there is a large number of prisoners there are none in for very serious offenses.

Cora A. Dufford of 106 Richelieu avenue has filed an application at the prothonotary's office for a divorce from her husband, Ralph V. Dufford, of 104 South Crawford avenue. The application is made on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple were married in July, 1917.

Constables in some of the rural districts are complaining of the trouble they are having in collecting taxes. Often it is necessary to make several trips to the same place, and the constables claim that gasoline costs and the wear and tear of their cars, amounts to more than the commission they get on the taxes. Collectors have been helped out to some extent by Federal land bank loans and Home Owners Corporation loans, during the past summer.

Roxy Long, who was convicted at the September term of court of conspiracy to defraud wholesale merchants, is still in the Lawrence county jail, but Sheriff Pritchard expects to take him to the workhouse within the next few days.

Prisoners in the Lawrence county jail are anticipating a good dinner on Thanksgiving. Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard, has not yet announced what the bill of fare is likely to be, but he is planning to give the boys something out of the ordinary.

County commissioners report that the state highway has prepared to make the highways safe for motorists this winter by providing cinder dumps at hills and erecting snow fences where experience has shown that snow is likely to drift. Men have been assigned to look after certain hills and when there is a snow fall or the road becomes coated with ice, all that it will be necessary to do will be to scatter the ashes.

As the court house will be closed on Thanksgiving it might be well to remind those who expect to celebrate by getting married, that there is likely to be a big rush for marraige licenses on the day proceding. Get your license early in the week and avoid the rush.

Polish People To Celebrate Freedom

High Mass In Polish Church With Bishop Jasinski Followed By Afternoon Program

On Sunday, November 25, there will be held the 104th anniversary of the Polish insurrection by the Holy Trinity church and Polish National Union, Troop 119.

There will be a high mass at 10:30 a. m. in the Polish National Catholic church with Rt. Rev. Bishop Jan Z. Jasinski and many priests officiating.

At two p. m. the anniversary will take place at the Roumanian hall, South Jefferson street. Here also, many speakers will be heard, including Rt. Rev. Jasinski, Mayor Mayne, several representatives from clubs and many others.

This anniversary of the Polish November insurrection has a great meaning to the Polish people because on November 29, 1830, the Military Academy of Warsaw went against the czar of Russia to gain freedom that Poland had lost in the breaking up of her country in the year of 1792.

Hence every year the Polish people here and in Poland celebrate this big event.

Editor Speaks To Valley Engineers

Magazine Chief Heard At Dinner Of Mahoning-Shenango Group

PITTSBURGH MAN TALKS ON SAFETY

Managing Editor G. F. Nordenholt of "Product Engineering," nationally known engineering magazine, told the Mahoning-Shenango Valley Engineers' society at The Castleton last night that the "obsoleting" of products now in use is what will bring on "another era of good business."

"Engineers today," the speaker declared before the engineers and plant representatives from the New Castle and surrounding districts, "are designing today new things which, once production gets under way, will be wanted by everybody."

"On the Market at Profit Prices" was Editor Nordenholt's subject.

Illustrating his message with slides which surveyed the results of engineering activity of the past few years, Mr. Nordenholt, a New Yorker, devoted most of his time to a discussion of the philosophies which have been adopted—and mostly unconsciously—in the engineering departments of the nation's progressive companies.

In non-technical language, he declared the three outstanding philosophies to be these:

First: Engineers have brought about the elimination of the word "T" from can't.

Second: In former years when engineers designed a part, it was designed to perform one given service. Now they design them for a "multiplicity of services."

Three: Engineers have eliminated unnecessary connecting members from machines they design.

A bright future for the engineering industry was painted in the address which the speaker gave.

Presiding during the evening was Carl Leis, Johnson Bronze company executive and president of the society.

Nominations Made

Reporting in the business session of the evening, the society's special nominating committee, headed by W. Keith McAfee, head of the Universal Sanitary Manufacturing company, offered the following slate of 1935 officers for the consideration of members before the election in December:

For president, Carl Leis; vice president, J. L. Matthews, New Castle Water company superintendent; treasurer, John Boyles, Shenango Pottery company; secretary, Thomas L. Paden, Pennsylvania Power company, and members-at-large of the society council, Charles Adams and W. P. Lohrman.

While the society dined last night a group of senior high musicians played. They were brought to the meeting by E. L. Cramer, newly appointed school board member and society member, who extolled the players and senior high's musical rating in a short speech during the dinner. Dorothy Fisher, talented pianist, was personally introduced.

D. D. Gough, Pittsburgh, scored "drunken driving" in a brief talk before Mr. Nordenholt spoke. He spoke in the interest of Everybody's Safety Drive, now closing.

For the speaker at the society's next meeting, W. Keith McAfee announced last night, Ross C. Purdy, of Columbus, general secretary of the American Ceramic society, has been secured.

Numerous guests attended last night's dinner with the local engineers.

The program arrangements were in charge of Ed. L. Davenport of the Johnson Bronze company, chairman of the society's entertainment committee.

HEARING HELD IN AUTO THEFTS

Alderman Frees One, Holds Three; Another Waives Case To Court

One of five youths charged by Chief of Police John F. Haven with participation in auto thefts here during the last few weeks won a discharge when hearings were held before Alderman Wallace J. Ewing.

Joseph Rubino, Pollock avenue, was absolved of all blame when the alderman discharged him.

Three of the young men, George Haas, South Mercer street; Joseph Cople, East Home street, and Joseph Fullwood, Pollock avenue, were bound over to the December court, while the fourth, William Brachetti, Phillips street, waived his hearing.

Haas, Cople and Brachetti face the combined charges of larceny of automobiles, driving cars without the owners' consent and malicious mischief. Fullwood, the only one to plead "guilty" before the alderman, faces only the first two charges, as the malicious mischief charge was not lodged against him.

All of the four, with the exception of Cople, provided bail of $500 and were released. Cople is in the county jail.

NO CARDS, HE GETS JAIL

Because he failed to show either an operator's or owner's registration card for a truck he was driving near the city-Shenango township line yesterday, Joseph Rogers, Negro, was arraigned by Constable W. R. Waddington, Shenango township, before Alderman Wallace J. Ewing.

He was sent to the county jail for five days after being given several hours to produce the cards.

Union High School News

FORM NEW DEBATE CLUB

Thirty-five members of the seventh and eighth grades are determined to excel in argument, and have banded together with Donald Hoffmaster, faculty member, as their leader and have formed the Junior Debate club.

A series of plays in which everyone will be given a chance to participate, have been planned for this year.

Officers of the club include: Roberta Allen, president; Robert McGrew, secretary; Dorothy Linton, reporter.

The first program will be presented in assembly sometime next week.

ASSEMBLY IS HELD

Using a crystal as the medium for foretelling the future, Donald Hoffmaster, the other day in assembly, proved his powers in this art.

The senior class was the particularly interested audience as most of the fortune given pertained to them.

Pep talks by Coaches D. M. Boyd and Jay Rudolph, and the cheers of the school seemed to have the desired effect as Union proved by defeating Sandy Lake the following day.

STUDENT PERSONALS

Stella Pilch of the eighth grade, who was absent from her studies for about a week on account of illness, has returned.

Evelyn Steele, a freshman, has been confined to her home by an attack of grip for some time.

Adeline Stojak has been absent from school on account of illness.

Betty Stockman, who was operated on for appendicitis, has returned to school.

Marjorie Merchant, who has been ill with tonsilitis, has returned to school.

NOTES ABOUT GROUPS

A club, as yet without a name, was formed in October by a small group of Union high students. It met Friday, November 16, at the home of Dorothy Jackson.

The evening was spent with games and refreshments were served.

The sophomore class party was held Friday evening, November 23, at the home of Lois and Howard Cochran.

The senior class will give its play, entitled "The Whole Town's Talking", on December 12, and on November 24 they are going on a trip to Pittsburgh.

On Court House Hill

The W. W. Kimball Company has issued a writ of replevin at the prothonotary's office against Port Buskirk, to secure possession of a piano.

An appeal from the decision of Alderman Mantz has been filed by the defendant in the case of the Fleming Standard Steel Company against Carl Becker in which judgment for the plaintiff was given in the sum of $108.

Jury Commissioners George J. Forrest and B. Frank Thorn yesterday filled the jury wheel for 1935, placing therein 1300 new names. There were 111 names in the wheel from last year, so that the total number is now 1411.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor reports that at one time this week there were 57 prisoners in the county jail, the largest number at any one time since Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard assumed office. Discharges during the week brought the present number down to 48. There are three women on the list. While there is a large number of prisoners there are none in for very serious offenses.

Cora A. Dufford of 106 Richelieu avenue has filed an application at the prothonotary's office for a divorce from her husband, Ralph V. Dufford, of 104 South Crawford avenue. The application is made on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple were married in July, 1917.

Constables in some of the rural districts are complaining of the trouble they are having in collecting taxes. Often it is necessary to make several trips to the same place, and the constables claim that gasoline costs and the wear and tear of their cars, amounts to more than the commission they get on the taxes. Collectors have been helped out to some extent by Federal land bank loans and Home Owners Corporation loans, during the past summer.

Roxy Long, who was convicted at the September term of court of conspiracy to defraud wholesale merchants, is still in the Lawrence county jail, but Sheriff Pritchard expects to take him to the workhouse within the next few days.

Prisoners in the Lawrence county jail are anticipating a good dinner on Thanksgiving. Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard, has not yet announced what the bill of fare is likely to be, but he is planning to give the boys something out of the ordinary.

County commissioners report that the state highway has prepared to make the highways safe for motorists this winter by providing cinder dumps at hills and erecting snow fences where experience has shown that snow is likely to drift. Men have been assigned to look after certain hills and when there is a snow fall or the road becomes coated with ice, all that it will be necessary to do will be to scatter the ashes.

As the court house will be closed on Thanksgiving it might be well to remind those who expect to celebrate by getting married, that there is likely to be a big rush for marraige licenses on the day proceding. Get your license early in the week and avoid the rush.

Polish People To Celebrate Freedom

High Mass In Polish Church With Bishop Jasinski Followed By Afternoon Program

On Sunday, November 25, there will be held the 104th anniversary of the Polish insurrection by the Holy Trinity church and Polish National Union, Troop 119.

There will be a high mass at 10:30 a. m. in the Polish National Catholic church with Rt. Rev. Bishop Jan Z. Jasinski and many priests officiating.

At two p. m. the anniversary will take place at the Roumanian hall, South Jefferson street. Here also, many speakers will be heard, including Rt. Rev. Jasinski, Mayor Mayne, several representatives from clubs and many others.

This anniversary of the Polish November insurrection has a great meaning to the Polish people because on November 29, 1830, the Military Academy of Warsaw went against the czar of Russia to gain freedom that Poland had lost in the breaking up of her country in the year of 1792.

Hence every year the Polish people here and in Poland celebrate this big event.

WORKERS' FORUM

Hope For The Old.

Your Brain Glows.

$125,000? Too Little.

Gold, A Mighty Power.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S encouraging message to mayors of many cities gathered in Chicago assures them that substantial results have been achieved "along the road of economic recovery." Most important and encouraging, the President's message says that Congress will "give further attention to old age pensions."

Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, was chosen to read the President's message.

IT IS good news that our government, following the example of civilized governments in other countries, will assume responsibility for poverty-stricken old age.

A "civilization" in which it is considered disgraceful to turn an old horse out to die should be ashamed to say to an old man or woman:

"We have got out of you all your useful work, now starve."

DR. CRILE, Cleveland scientific wizard, working in "pitch-black darkness of an underground laboratory," shows that brains of animals, including man, "grow by their own inner light, giving off a strange radiance, that casts a mystic halo."

Dr. Crile puts it scientifically:

"The sun shines again in the protoplasm of animals."

Can it be that luminosity of the brain, highly developed, first caused haloes to be painted around the heads of saints and other holy ones? Some religious "light" may have enabled pre-Raphaelite artists to see what Dr. Crile now sees by the light of science.

BRITISH taxpayers will pay the Duke of Kent, $125,000 a year after he marries Princess Marina, and Labor members in the House of Commons howl, long, loud and bitterly. The prince's pay is raised from $75,000 a year, and Maxton, M. P., asks why unemployed married couples on the dole can't be paid as much.

For his information, it may be stated that if the Duke of Kent and his wife will come here and work as hard, in the line of salesmanship, as the British royal family works at home, a dozen American firms will gladly pay them $125,000 a year, and twice that.

MIGHTY IS the power of gold. Ships from Russia bring cargoes of gold ore to Tacoma, in the state of Washington, where the ore is put through a special process.

With the refined gold, Russia builds up a cash reserve of American money for American purchases.

While expounding, and praising theories of Lenin and Karl Marx, practical Mr. Stalin does not neglect "capitalistic gold." Already, Russia produces $150,000,000 gold a year, three times as much as the total gold production of the United States. You could hardly exaggerate the influence of $150,000,000,000 gold a year on America's "best minds."

If Stalin raises Russian gold production, as he may do, to one thousand millions a year, and spends half of it here, those that came to jeer will stay to praise.

WHEN UNCLE SAM goes to market, buying for hungry nephews and nieces, he "goes wholesale." In New York State alone, the federal emergency relief has bought twelve cabbages to fill twelve trainloads of one hundred cars each. Uncle Sam bought generously, and raised the price from $2.50 and $3.50 a ton to more than $5.

Twenty-four million pounds of cabbages will be handed free to the needy.

ANCIENT Hebrews said:

"The blood is the life."

Modern science says sunlight is the life of the blood, which in turn distributed life throughout the body. Actinic rays create health-giving vitamins in the blood. Old age, especially, is benefitted by winter sunshine.

Word comes from Florida that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., nearing 100 years of age, and spending his winter in the Florida sunlight, is enjoying health greatly improved.

Diesel-engined airplanes carrying passengers across the continent, or from North to South, profitably, at ten dollars a trip, will enable millions of children to grow stronger, and millions of old men and women to live longer in winter sunshine.

PRIVATE OWNERS of public monopolies and necessities are horrified, as is natural by the President's speech promising cheap power but they should meditate on his statement to one southern city.

"Since you started using TVA power last March, your consumption for residential purposes has risen from 41,000 kilowatts to 89,0004 kilowatts an increase of 126 per cent."

Twice as great consumption with half as much profit might prove safer, more permanent, than the present arrangement, and just as profitable. New York's elevated railroad never made "real money" until the fare was cut from ten to five cents. Then the crowd rode.

(Copyright, 1934, by King Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all Other Rights Reserved.)

The so-called Chartist movement, an English Democratic agitation, took place in the years between 1838 and 1850. In the year 1848 an attempt was made to organize a revolutionary force of 100,000 armed men to march on the House of Commons and only the enrollment of 150,000 London householders as special constables coupled with a torrential downpour of rain on the appointed day brought the whole affair to a fiasco.

While employment in practically all lines in Italy is increasing that among office workers continues to grow.

Hamas And Baer May Be Matched For Chicago Ring

Former Penn State Star May Get Chance At Championship In Bout Next Spring

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Max Baer's fistic course for 1935 showed signs of taking form today in conferences scheduled in connection with the visit here of the heavyweight champion.

The chances that Chicago might win a heavyweight title show mounted with a statement today by Ancil Hoffman, the champion's manager, that he prefers to have Baer make his first defense of the title here next summer.

Jack Dempsey, it was understood, is to be a promotional principal. Hoffman stated that Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis, both of Chicago, may figure as co-promoters if a fight is closed for Soldier Field on the lake front.

Baer's opponent, the pilot said, can be selected from whatever contenders manage to forge to the front between then and now. Hoffman named Steve Hamas as the top challenger at present. Art Lasky having slumped in the ratings with his inability to polish off the exuberant Kingfish Levinsky last night.

King Levinsky Defeats Lasky

Maxie Baer Watches Heavies Battle, Buddy Baer Wins In First By Kayo

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—King Levinsky's ribs ached today, but the pride of Chicago's Ghetto held a draw decision after ten rounds of furious milling with Art Lasky, the Minneapolis and Los Angeles candidate for the heavyweight championship crown of Max Baer.

The champion himself was on hand to see the battle and was treated to an anxious moment when his 240 pound baby brother, Buddy, whom he seconded, blasted one Frank Ketter into unconsciousness in 25 seconds, on one of the preliminaries. Ketter was out for ten minutes.

Levinsky, after losing ground badly in the middle rounds, came galloping home to earn an unexpected draw in the eighth and ninth rounds.

Shenango Loses Seven Gridders

East New Castle Eleven Captures Four Victories During 1934 Season

SHENANGO DROPS ONLY TWO GAMES

One of the strongest gridiron elevens turned out at Shenango high in the past few years, is the 1934 Blue and Gold clad pigskin catchers who recently ended the season with a 26-13 victory over Union high.

Facing one of the toughest schedules in the history of the school, the East New Castle team captured four victories, lost only two games, and tied two tilts. Shenango's program called for contests with Mars, Zelienople, Sharpsville, Slippery Rock, Mercer, Bessemer, Emlenton and Union.

In toppling Mars, 6-0, Slippery Rock by a 13-0 score, holding Mercer 7-7, and losing to Bessemer by a 12-7 count, the Shenango team displayed its strength. The Bessemer-Shenango game proved one of the best enacted on the Cement City gridiron this year. It was anybody's game until the end. It was this game that cost Shenango the Lawrence County Class B title.

The East New Castle team tallied 78 points to 77 for their apponents. Sharpsville was the only team that rode roughshod over Shenango, 39-0, at the start of the season. Hortig with five touchdowns, was the big point scorer. The loss of Harvey Ketzel, who was injured early in the season, was greatly felt.

The gridiron careers of seven of Coach Edward Raney's first stringers, ended after the Union tilt. Graduation means the loss of the following players: Harry Hortig, Eugene McConahy, Ralph Perdue, John Petro, John Zak, Harry Gierling and Jack Shaffer.

The record made by the 1934 Shenango high team follows:

Shenango 0—Zelienople 0
Shenango 0—Sharpsville 39
Shenango 13—Slippery Rock 0
Shenango 7—Mercer 7
Shenango 6—Mars 0
Shenango 7—Bessemer 12
Shenango 19—Emlenton 6
Shenango 26—Union 13

Total points—Shenango 78; Opponents 77.

Touchdowns—Hortig 6, McConahy 2, Ketzel 2, Tanner 2.

Lou Brouillard Defeats Gainer

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Lou Brouillard, the squat little man from Worcester, got hunk for any rib-cracking indignities which may have been visited upon him by Al Gainer heretofore.

The former welter and middleweight champion romped home in ten rounds in Madison Square Garden, both Leach Cross and Marty Monroe, the judges, agreeing that the French-Canadian had triumphed.

It was a stubborn battle with the little man fighting a tenaciously aggressive battle from bell to bell.

Out-punched at times, Brouillard kept going with never a let up. He took the negro's hardest shots without batting an eye, and he won because he never dreamed of saying die.

Leonine verses was the name given to the hexameter and pentameter verses, common in the Middle Ages, which rhymed at the middle and end.

Seven New Co-eds Will Be Initiated

To Be Admitted To Westminster Women's Athletic Association On Monday

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Nov. 24.—Seven new co-ed members, outstanding in field hockey and soccer, will be initiated into the Women's Athletic Association at Westminster college on Monday evening, Miss Nandeen Love, director of athletics for women, announces.

The women students to be honored include: Margaret Bakken, Edgewood; Betty Oster, Homestead; Jane Byers, New Wilmington; Betty Barrett, Bellevue; Noreen Bontrager, Cleveland, O.; Mildred Kerr, Centerville; Sally Hamilton, Smith's Ferry, and Evelyn Hoagland, New Wilmington.

Initiation will be held in the W. A. A. clubroom in Hillside. Patricia Jones, New Wilmington, will preside, and Virgil Wettich, New Castle, hockey chairman, and Virginia Booth, Cleveland Heights, O., soccer chairman, will present letters to the new members. Guests at the initiation will include Dean Mary E. Turner, Mrs. Elizabeth Beam and Miss Nandeen Love.

W. A. A. now has 44 members, all of whom participate in at least two sports each year and are outstanding in at least one sport. The organization presented a new water fountain to be placed in the women's locker room of the gym last week. Last year the organization donated health scales for the locker room.

POOR DECISIONS IN BOXING

Occasionally we learn that the boxing commissions have become "alarmed" over the sour decisions and poor jobs turned in by the judges and referees assigned to some of the more important fights. They usually remain "alarmed" long enough to hold a meeting and investigation, and then, after a flowery statement or change in a few of the rules, they sit back until another "boner" on the part of the judges or referees causes them to become "alarmed."

However, "false alarms" are the extent of the commissions periodical arousings so far. The judges are still dealing the cards left-handed and the referees are handling the fights like a southpaw cuts a piece of beefsteak.

The Maxie Rosenbloom-Bob Olin fight card is the latest event to arouse the ire of the New York Boxing commission. Now, since the show was billed as a World's Championship affair it called for the best and most experienced officials that New York could offer.

The officials proved to be exactly that. By awarding the decisions to the losers in the main attraction and in the Sammy Fuller-Young Peter Jackson semi-final they proved themselves to be the best and most experienced in judging as it has been done in the past number of years.

They say experience makes for consistency and the judges certainly demonstrated they were among the best in that line by giving the loser the decision twice in the same evening without faltering. They may have been reading a few Detective magazines while the fights were in progress; they couldn't have been watching the ring and still award the decisions to Olin and Jackson.

What boxing needs is a little of the "over-emphasis" football is supposed to have. The fight game needs centralized supervision by persons who really know the sport from A to Z and who have a whole hearted interest in its advancement.

Right now, it is unnecessary to go into detail on whether or not those in charge know all they should about about boxing or are as interested in the game as they should be because there is no centralized supervision.

With various commissions regulating as they see fit, the country can't even establish national champions, let alone cooperate with Europe, Canada and other places on worlds champions. What respect should the foreign commission be expected to have for American championship claims when the national rulers can't appoint efficient officials or even get together on a champion in each of the various classes.

There is no reason why boxing cannot be established firmly with definite rules and capable officials, referees and judges in charge. Baseball never has any major problems regarding its umpires; the football referees, on the whole, do their job quite satisfactorily; and basketball, a comparatively new sport, is far ahead of boxing as far as officiating is concerned.

If the fight game is to again become one of the most popular American sports it shall have to undergo a thorough house-cleaning. With the flabby, loose supervision, and inefficient officiating now prevalent the fistic game will soon be nothing but a burlesque just as wrestling, another old-time sport of high esteem that has been degraded.

Fights could be handled as efficiently and capably as baseball, football or basketball but it takes careful selection of officials who have had proper training. And to get this there must be an organization at the helm with proper authority and knowledge of the game.

AUDIA IN CALIFORNIA

Word has been received by Fred Marcella of South Mill street, of the arrival at Los Angeles, Cal., of Joseph "Flash" Audia, well known South Side sportsman. Mr. Audia left New Castle several weeks ago and took a steamer cruise from New York to Cuba, through the Panama Canal and up the California coast. He will be back in New Castle in January. While in California Audia will visit with Emmett Rocco and Joe Biondi, former New Castle men.

New Castle Has Chance For Title

Must Defeat Turtle Creek High At Taggart Stadium Next Thursday

With a chance for the Class AA championship as the prize, the New Castle High School "Red Hurricane" football team will "shoot the works" against the strong Turtle Creek High here next Thursday afternoon in the "Turkey Day" battle. The game will start at 2:15 o'clock.

Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh has been giving the New Castle team a lot of extra-heavy work this week. The locals have lacked a scoring punch in the last three games, making but one touchdown.

New Castle will have to be up on top to take the measure of the scrappy little Turtle Creek High team coached by Ben Haldy, former Westminster star backfield man.

New Castle will play New Kensington High for the Class AA toga at a place to be selected later providing they trim Turtle Creek, but at the moment this looks like a tough assignment.

Firpo Defeats Billy Ketchell

Butch, Brouillard And Dublinsky Win 10 Round Bouts Last Night

Henry Firpo of Louisville scored another victory in Philadelphia last night when he outpointed Billy Ketchell in 10 rounds. Firpo weighed 165 and his opponent 171. About a week ago Firpo scored a knockout over another fighter.

Mose Butch won a split decision from Matt White of Scranton in 10 rounds at Pittsburgh and Lou Brouillard beat Al Gainer at New Haven in 10 rounds. One of the other fights last night resulted in Harry Dublinsky beating Tony Falco of Philadelphia in 10 rounds.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Next Friday night at Albany, N. Y., Sammy Crocetti, a Jimmie Dime featherweight, will realize one of his ambitions—professional pugilism. For two years he has been training under Dime's instructions, and during that time has fought in some amateur scraps. He will find the professional ranks hard to wade through and whether he goes to the top where the golden rainbow is located or falls along the gruelling road remains to be seen.

Officials of the Lawrence County Baseball league were pleased to receive word that the Italian Athletic association would return to baseball next spring. The I. A. A., up to several years ago, had their own team and always put a strong aggregation in the field. They propose to have Centennial field put in condition and with prospects of fast opposition and good crowds, the team should be able to do well financially.

A. A. Stagg and Andy Kerr, grid coaches, believe football is going to be opened up and that changes will be brought about so there will be more forward and lateral passes, five downs to make 10 yards, lowering of the cross bar on the goal field, restoration of the "onside kick" and use of a twelfth man who would serve merely as a signal caller or "brain truster" of the gridiron. Line plunging power plays will be a thing of the past if these changes are brought about.

Ah, here's something of a sport that once was returning to the fore—weight lifting. The Amateur Athletic union of this district will hold a divisional championship meet at Pittsburgh, December 15. There will be weight lifting for all classes. Some years ago the city had a weight lifter, namely, Joe George. He is a tin worker here now. Alec Thomas, formerly of this city and now of Youngstown, was another. Not so long ago a troupe showed in Ohio and among the stunts was a weight lifting contest.

Although he has turned 65 and his hair is streaked with grey, Bill Andrews is not through with baseball. While it is true he does not actively participate in games any more, he is keenly interested in the national sport. Several nights ago he said he has played baseball since he wore knee breeches and played on regular teams when he was 12, which gives Andrews about 53 years in baseball. Bill also was affiliated with the Barry Boys, who featured here about 20 years ago.

Johnny Banko, former lightweight of this city, is at West Pittsburg and if pugilistic conditions ever pick up Bob Latera plans to start Johnny back into training. . . . Not so long ago two of the boys who fought a thrilling battle at the bowl met on a football team and punches flew. They were Homer Gray and Merle Gibson. . . . Frank Summers will be the guiding hand behind the team that will play at Centennial field next summer. . . . It won't be long now until the Church Basketball league gets under way with several games weekly.

Children should be particularly protected against the infectious diseases and exposure which may lead to "rheumatic heart."

Gilbanes Given College Honor

Pre-Season Court Games Approved

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 24.—Pre-season court games with six or seven independent teams in the district were approved for the Westminster college basketball team by the athletic council. Officers of the club include: Roberta Allen, president; Robert McGrew, secretary; Dorothy Linton, reporter.

The first program will be presented in assembly sometime next week.

ASSEMBLY IS HELD

Using a crystal as the medium for foretelling the future, Donald Hoffmaster, the other day in assembly, proved his powers in this art.

The senior class was the particularly interested audience as most of the fortune given pertained to them.

Pep talks by Coaches D. M. Boyd and Jay Rudolph, and the cheers of the school seemed to have the desired effect as Union proved by defeating Sandy Lake the following day.

On Court House Hill

The W. W. Kimball Company has issued a writ of replevin at the prothonotary's office against Port Buskirk, to secure possession of a piano.

An appeal from the decision of Alderman Mantz has been filed by the defendant in the case of the Fleming Standard Steel Company against Carl Becker in which judgment for the plaintiff was given in the sum of $108.

Jury Commissioners George J. Forrest and B. Frank Thorn yesterday filled the jury wheel for 1935, placing therein 1300 new names. There were 111 names in the wheel from last year, so that the total number is now 1411.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor reports that at one time this week there were 57 prisoners in the county jail, the largest number at any one time since Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard assumed office. Discharges during the week brought the present number down to 48. There are three women on the list. While there is a large number of prisoners there are none in for very serious offenses.

Cora A. Dufford of 106 Richelieu avenue has filed an application at the prothonotary's office for a divorce from her husband, Ralph V. Dufford, of 104 South Crawford avenue. The application is made on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple were married in July, 1917.

Constables in some of the rural districts are complaining of the trouble they are having in collecting taxes. Often it is necessary to make several trips to the same place, and the constables claim that gasoline costs and the wear and tear of their cars, amounts to more than the commission they get on the taxes. Collectors have been helped out to some extent by Federal land bank loans and Home Owners Corporation loans, during the past summer.

Roxy Long, who was convicted at the September term of court of conspiracy to defraud wholesale merchants, is still in the Lawrence county jail, but Sheriff Pritchard expects to take him to the workhouse within the next few days.

Prisoners in the Lawrence county jail are anticipating a good dinner on Thanksgiving. Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard, has not yet announced what the bill of fare is likely to be, but he is planning to give the boys something out of the ordinary.

County commissioners report that the state highway has prepared to make the highways safe for motorists this winter by providing cinder dumps at hills and erecting snow fences where experience has shown that snow is likely to drift. Men have been assigned to look after certain hills and when there is a snow fall or the road becomes coated with ice, all that it will be necessary to do will be to scatter the ashes.

As the court house will be closed on Thanksgiving it might be well to remind those who expect to celebrate by getting married, that there is likely to be a big rush for marraige licenses on the day proceding. Get your license early in the week and avoid the rush.

Polish People To Celebrate Freedom

High Mass In Polish Church With Bishop Jasinski Followed By Afternoon Program

On Sunday, November 25, there will be held the 104th anniversary of the Polish insurrection by the Holy Trinity church and Polish National Union, Troop 119.

There will be a high mass at 10:30 a. m. in the Polish National Catholic church with Rt. Rev. Bishop Jan Z. Jasinski and many priests officiating.

At two p. m. the anniversary will take place at the Roumanian hall, South Jefferson street. Here also, many speakers will be heard, including Rt. Rev. Jasinski, Mayor Mayne, several representatives from clubs and many others.

This anniversary of the Polish November insurrection has a great meaning to the Polish people because on November 29, 1830, the Military Academy of Warsaw went against the czar of Russia to gain freedom that Poland had lost in the breaking up of her country in the year of 1792.

Hence every year the Polish people here and in Poland celebrate this big event.
